WHAT YOU NEED

and what everyone needs to achieve happiness and success, is the power of employing and maintaining one's strength to the full. Men and women whose labours involve a considerable amount of brain work often neglect their bodily health; but it should never be forgotten that physical and mental fitness are closely related. Certain it is that under the stress and strain of present-day business and social life no one can safely afford to neglect the health. It is well known that a large proportion of illness could be prevented by taking proper measures in time, and it is generally recognised that the majority of ailments have their origin in some irregularity or disturbance of the digestive organs. Beecham's Pills are a world-renowned specific for the relief of those stomach disorders to which most people are subject from time to time. That these pills are

is proved by their long continued popularity and the ever increasing demand for them. Sick headache, biliousness, acidity, flatulence, constipation, that feeling of heaviness and general want of tone, are indicative of something wrong with the digestive functions. Beecham's Pills, which are familiarly described as "WORTH A GUINEA A BOX," are speedy and safe in their action, strengthen the stomach, gently stimulate the liver and kidneys, and assist nature in carrying on her work. Too much stress cannot be laid on the importance of keeping the bowels healthy and regular; there is nothing better for the purpose than a dose of

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

PHŒNIX PARK.

INTERESTING RACING.

TOMTOI WINS THE PARK PLATE.

As usual, the Phœnix Park meeting marks the wind-up of the series of sporting events associated with Horse Show Week, and the opening day's racing yesterday was quite up to the standard of past seasons. Runners may not have been as numerous as in other years, but the racing was interesting, and some very close finishes were witnessed. The threatening appearance of the morning doubtless kept many people away, but as matters turned out it was a very genial afternoon, the weather, if not exactly summer-like, being mild and agreeable, and the going afforded excellent galloping.

The Park Plate, for two-year-olds, the principal event on the card, was won by Mr. T. J. O'Neill's Tomtoi, who scored in the style of a smart youngster. The conditions of the race required the winner to be submitted for sale at 300 sovs., and it was an encouraging sign of the times to find such spirited bidding for the son of Achtoi, who ultimately went into the possession of Mr. C. T. Wallis for 850 sovs. Red Connors, who, after winning a selling race at Baldoyle, failed to elicit a bid, and subsequently won the Londonderry Plate at Leopardstown, could now do no better than finish third behind Vesington Boy, who got to within a length and a half of the winner. Minniement, who was backed with much confidence for the race won by World Peace at Baldoyle, got some of the losses back by taking the Greenmount Plate. In this case the winner was always in front, and once Belle Field was disposed of a couple of furlongs from home, there was never any danger, as Farasius, who became second inside the distance, was always held safe, as were all the others. Only five runners turned out for the Ashtown Plate, a selling handicap for two-year-olds, and backers for the most part supported Jabbitore, who up to this had invariably disappointed his connections. Once more he ran in disappointing fashion, and for so doing no excuse could be offered, for he was one of the quickest away from the barrier, but, after showing prominently for three furlongs, dropped out of the reckoning, and Noisy thenceforward had the race at his mercy, and was afterwards bought in for 100 sovs.

Seven of the thirteen runners for the Clonsilla Plate came in for support in the wagering, and Fairy Lass, Levandale, and Athene eventually left off equal favourites. It was an interesting race, and Fairy Lass, who, being quickest into her stride, was in the van for practically all the journey, successfully withstood the vigorous challenge of Whitenza, and won by a head. Levandale was prominent for a long way, as were Bon Secour and Symmetrian, but Irish Sailor, as at Leopardstown, performed moderately. Backers showed good judgment when they selected Rouken Glen and Fair Ionian as a pair to beat the field in the Whitefields Plate. A long way from home the two had the race to themselves, and it was only in the last stride or two that Rouken Glen got in front to gain a short head victory. The outsiders, Game Greek and Revol Mine, similarly had a great tussle for supremacy in the Somerton Plate, the former prevailing by a head. Details:—

TO-DAY'S BIG RACE.

The richly-endowed Phœnix Plate, one of the most important races for two-year-olds run in Ireland during the season, always brings out a representative field, and to-day's race will prove no exception to the rule, as will be gathered from the appended list of

LAUNE RIVER, 8-1 (Mr. J. Leech), br. f., by Flying Orb—Croila (Bell)........James Doyle
*Doubtful starter.

There is certainly material for a fine race, and the meeting of such smart juveniles as Zanoni, Rabona, Cynos, Wild Fox, Aquilon, and Black Orator, not to mention Melra and Gay Ditty, will render it a contest well worth seeing. There are possibilities about the debutante, Suir Blue, who is a half-sister by Lomond to the Irish Derby winner, Ballyheron, and Melra, granted she jumps off the mark on terms with the others, is expected to atone for some recent disappointments. The finish, however, will probably be fought out by the three top weights, Cynos, Zanoni, and Rabona, the former of which trio won the Grand Prize at Leopardstown in such convincing fashion, and it is well on the cards that he will complete a notable double by adding to-day's race to his laurels. I shall give my vote to and Zanoni and Rabona may fill the remaining places. Other selections are appended:—

Blanchardstown Plate—Bachelor's Fort.
Selling Plate—Poetess or Battle Call.
Country Plate—Belle Field.

SPORTING PARAGRAPHS.

Subsequently to winning the Park Plate at Phœnix Park yesterday, Tomtoi was purchased at auction by Mr. C. T. Wallis for 850 sovs.

In the absence of Major Blennerhassett, owing to illness, Mr. L. L. Firth acted as Starter at Phœnix Park Meeting yesterday, and proved an admirable substitute for the senior official.

A. Archibald, who had been engaged to ride Melra in the Phœnix Plate to-day, has not been able to make the journey from England, and the mount on Mr. J. Daly's filly will be taken by A. Dardis.

Messrs. W. Parrish and H. H. Beasley had an exciting, but unpleasant, experience on Wednesday when on their way by aeroplane from London to Ostend. Just as they reached the coast some engine trouble developed, and the machine dropped into a cornfield. The pilot was seriously injured, but Mr. Parrish sustained only a slight bruise on his arm, and his companion a minor injury to his foot. Another aeroplane was promptly secured, and the journey resumed, and they duly reached Ostend, where Beasley won a race on Mr. Parrish's Eagleless. Mr. Parrish and Beasley left Ostend in the afternoon and reached Dublin yesterday in time for the Phœnix Park Races.

We are able to state that, according to present arrangements, Ramus, the French Derby winner, who narrowly missed the Grand Prix after being practically left, will not be sent to Doncaster.

M. Wing rode the winners of the first two races at Phœnix Park yesterday.

HURST PARK

GOOD FIELDS.

SOUBRIQUET WINS RICHEMOUNT STAKES.

It had been hoped that the forthcoming race for the St. Leger would be of an international character by the presence of the French Derby winner and the Grand Prix second, Ramus, but I heard yesterday on excellent authority that a letter had been received from the colt's owner stating that he had decided not to send him to Doncaster owing to the number of valuable engagements he holds in France.

Most interest in yesterday afternoon's racing centred in the re-appearance of Sir Edward Hulton's filly, Soubriquet, in the Richemount Maiden Three-Year-Old Stakes, this being her first race since Pogrom beat her in the Oaks. The race was for maidens at closing, the date of which was October 4 of last year. Soubriquet had since earned a penalty of 14lb. for her success in the Tudor Stakes at Sandown in April. Nothing was seriously fancied to beat her, but she did not score as one naturally expects of a 5 to 2 on chance, and Corcyrian in the end appeared fairly to extend her, though the probability is that Elliott took matters a trifle easy in the end, and could, had it been necessary, have finished with more than a head to spare.

Ethereal's narrow success over Austin Friars in the Wilderness Handicap was largely due to the horsemanship of young Jones. Radiant River was once more trusted in this event, but a mile is probably a trifle beyond him.

Though there was in a numerical sense strong opposition to Tornaveen in the Lennox Maiden Plate nothing was seriously expected to trouble him. He was drawn on the extreme left, or No. 1 position, and Beary saw to it that the favourite was well away, and, if not always actually in front, he had always got the opposition beaten. For a stride or two Carslake drew level on Thyene, but Tornaveen immediately drew away again, and in the end was a very comfortable winner.

Cottage is at best only a moderate animal, and probably his second to Flamboyant in the Goodwood Cup flattered him. He proved a perfectly false favourite for the Fountain Handicap, and never really promised to finish in the first three. Lady Diana's clever win enhances the form of her Sandown conqueror, Charlebelle.

Betting:—2 to 1 agst. Radiant River, 4 to 1 Austin Friars, 6 to 1 Gentleman, 8 to 1 Roman Empress, 100 to 8 ETHEREAL or any other.

Werwolf settled down from Tinfoil, Austin Friars and Gentleman, with Radiant River last, except Widow Bird, who began slowly. Tinfoil ran out and Torlinda went on. Two furlongs from home Austin Friars took command, but was challenged by Ethereal, who won a good race by a head; the same distance separated second and third. Treviso was fourth, Radiant River fifth, Werwolf sixth, and Widow Bird last.

(Winner trained by D. Waugh.)

Betting—5 to 2 on SOUBRIQUET, 5 to 1 agst. Sanhedrim, 10 to 1 Corcyrian, 20 to 1 any other.

Dr. Quill led from Great Star and Sanhedrim, with Wee Laddie last. In the straight Soubriquet ran into third place, and shortly after became second. A quarter of a mile from home she took command, and, resisting the attentions of Corcyrian, won cleverly by a head; two lengths separated second and third. Sanhedrim was fourth, and Great Star last.

ANGLING.

ANTRIM AND DERRY RIVERS.

After intermittent spates, the Glens of Antrim rivers are down to the usual summer level, with consequent results to fishing, which up to date has been confined to the local people. The Glens are now quiet—have been since the last terrible event in which several lives were lost—and there is little likelihood of any further trouble in that locality. The Bush is down to summer level. The salmon are in great numbers in it from the Sheep Pool up to the Conacher Bridge. There has been little rod fishing lately. Salmon are off the coast, but in lessening numbers, so that the big runs of the season are almost at an end. The other waters of County Antrim are low and clear, and anglers are devoutly wishing for floods. There was such dreadful poaching on the grouse moors in many parts of the county in the past couple of months that the shooting season will be a poor one on many of the Derry moors. The Faughan, Moyola, and other rivers off Derry are much in need of heavy floods.

STANLEY COCHRANE CUP.

When play in the Stanley Cochrane Cup Tournament was resumed yesterday evening at the A.I.P.C., Phœnix Park, the weather was dull and threatening, and there was only a very small attendance. In the first match, between Raglans and Ardsallagh, there was any amount of hard, open galloping, but not a goal was scored. Raglans, however, were allowed one goal for a difference of two points in the handicap aggregates, and this gave them victory, but as the tournament will be decided by goals, the winning margin will not be any great help to them.

The second game, between Culmullen and Collinstown, was splendidly contested, and it was only in the last chukkar that Culmullen really asserted superiority, and putting on a couple of goals without response, rode off winners by 6 goals to 3.

RAGLANS (1) v. ARDSALLAGH (0).

Raglans—Mr. W. Fitzgerald, Captain B. Daly, Mr. W. V. Slocock and Mr. J. W. Shackleton (back).

Raglans were allowed one goal for a difference of two points in the handicap aggregates. Ardsallagh had much the better of the first period, but try as they might they could not score, though on one occasion Captain Wyndham Quin had hard luck with a neat backhander. There was any amount of hard galloping in the second chukkar. Captain Daly put in one grand run along the boards, but his pony swerved when close to goal. In the third chukkar the ball was taken from end to end several times, but nothing was scored. Mr. Slocock sent in one good shot to Ardsallagh's goal, but Captain Wyndham Quin hooked out from the post. Both sides missed chances in the last chukkar, and there was still no score, leaving Raglans winners on their handicap allowance.

CULMULLEN (6) v. COLLINSTOWN (3).

Culmullen—Mr. J. Leonard, Mr. B. T. O'Reilly, Major Scott and Major Kirkwood (back).

Collinstown—Mr. J. Malcolm, Mr. P. Cullinan, Mr. T. G. Fletcher and Mr. A. Balding (back).

Collinstown made the pace in the first chukkar, and following good play by Mr. Balding, Mr. Malcolm hit a goal. The others, however, attacked from the throw in, and equalised, while just before the change Mr. O'Reilly went near obtaining the lead for Culmullen. Early in the second chukkar Culmullen went into the lead, and this was supplemented a few minutes later by a goal from Major Scott. In the third chukkar Mr. B. O'Reilly hit an easy goal for Culmullen, but shortly afterwards Mr. Malcolm got off in a fine gallop to score, while before the change Collinstown got down again and Mr. Fletcher hit through. Thus only one goal separated the sides on entering the last chukkar. But Culmullen held the upper hand, and scoring twice per Major Scott and Mr. O'Reilly, rode off winners by three goals.

Umpires—Mr. P. J. Leonard and Mr. Bramwell.

DAVIS CUP.

The final round of the Davis Cup Competition, the winners of which will meet the Americans in the challenge round, was begun at Philadelphia on Thursday between Australasia and Spain. G. L. Patterson (Australasia) defeated Count de Gomar by 6-3, 8-6, 6-4. Both players were erratic at first—de Gomar in particular—either driving into the net or outside the court comparatively easy shots. By adopting forcing tactics, however, Patterson soon had his opponent running all over the court. The Spaniard got in many brilliant shots in the second set, but Patterson resumed the lead with some excellent play at the net.

GAELIC ATHLETIC PASTIMES.

(BY PAT O.)

Senior inter-county contests are not to be resumed for a few weeks. Faughs are Leinster champions for 1921, and St. Mary's hold a like honour in football. The All-Ireland finals are not possible just yet, but I learn that Limerick teams are already marshalling their forces with a view to meeting the champions in the late autumn. I think a special endeavour must be made to play the 1921 finals. Some good matches are sadly wanted to revive the waning interest. It may be difficult to get teams together, but I think it could, and should, be done. Otherwise Gaelic pastimes must lose that generous public patronage evidenced during the summer championship finals.

Kilkenny and Wexford meeting is fixed for Wexford Park on September 3rd in the Leinster semi-final of 1922. The winners will play Faughs for the honour of representing the province. Wexford has improved its hurling standard recently, and Kilkenny's smart exhibition on their last visit to Dublin points to a keen struggle. Dublin will need their best fifteen to triumph over the winners, and we saw distinct evidence of staleness in the Metropolitan's recent displays.

At Croke Park to-morrow, Kickhams meet McCrackens at 12 o'clock, and Parnells meet St. Patrick's immediately after. The first-named team ought to win each game, but McCrackens are a sound lot of footballers. On August 27, at Parnell Park, a couple of most important games in the Senior League are listed. Here Kickhams meet Parnells, and Keatings play St. Mary's. Most interest attaches to the first match, for Kickhams and Parnells are old rivals, and both are fighting stoutly for the League leadership. Keatings have been somewhat disorganised recently, but I learn they are arranging practices at the moment.

Seven-a-side competitions are very popular just now, and almost every team in Dublin has entered for the new tournament. Draws take place to-night (Saturday), at 8.30 in the Chambers of No. 68.

Collegians can rarely field a team during the summer holidays—many of their best men are drawn from rural districts where they are presently sojourning. Early in September they will resume, and hurling and football teams are likely to reach their full strength shortly after. At this week's meeting of the Dublin Senior Board representatives were agreed that a speeding-up movement is necessary. Prevailing conditions seriously interfere with the G.A.A. programme, but "carry on" is the order of the day, and teams must rise to the occasion. Many clubs shelter junior players, whose introduction to senior football may lead to the discovery of unsuspected talent.

Mr. Foley, editor of the Southern Cross, of Buenos Ayres, is in Dublin just now, and he told me during the week that hurling has a big following in the Argentine. Their hurls are sent from Ireland, and championship games attract large crowds. He hopes to send a team across for next season's Games.

CRICKET.

COUNTY DUBLIN V. COLONEL CHALONER'S XI.

Some highly interesting cricket was witnessed yesterday on the Leinster ground, Rathmines, where Co. Dublin, playing Colonel Challenor's XI., left off in a commanding position, as, after dismissing the military for 155, they replied with 349 before their last wicket fell just on the stroke of time. The military, who batted first, occupied the wickets two and a quarter hours. They made a bad start, losing 3 for 25, while half the side were out for 33. At this stage, however, Phillips and Laurence came to the rescue, and with both playing free, confident cricket 57 was added for the sixth wicket before Phillips was smartly taken behind the wicket by A. P. Kelly. He made 40 in fine style, and hit 5 boundaries. Laurence batted stylishly, and got 39, while Ibbotson (18) and Challenor (11) were the only other batsmen to reach double figures. Harrington had the best analysis, securing 4 wickets for 40, while G. N. Kelly, who captured the first 3 wickets for 13, secured 4 for 40 runs.

The County Dublin side, after losing Kempster at 3, eventually totalled 349, the result of three hours and ten minutes' batting. The run-getting was most consistent, no less than eight of the side reaching double figures. Heaslip and Bookman made a fine stand for the second wicket, which realised 69, before Heaslip was bowled by Pike for 39, a nice innings, including 5 boundaries. A. P. Kelly gave little trouble, while Bookman was bowled on a good ball from Pike for 39, a contribution which included 7 fours. Subsequently Lambert, Kidd, Pigot, and Power all scored freely. The Leinster crack batted with great confidence, and with Kidd as partner added 60 for the fifth wicket before Kidd was smartly run out for 48. Pigot assisted Lambert to add 73 for the sixth wicket when the 'Varsity player was well held by Carr at cover for 37. When 76 Lambert was held by Carr off Burridge. Batting for 100 minutes, he hit 12 fours in a faultless compilation of 76. Power hit freely for 45, getting a six and 6 fours, while Kelly made 20 and Murphy 15. Laurence, who went on late in the innings, took 2 wickets for 26, and came out the best of the military bowlers. A resumption will be made this morning at 11.30. Score:—

KENT V. NOTTS.

COLLINS'S FINE PERFORMANCE.

Following up the great advantage they had secured over Notts, Kent won easily at Dover yesterday by an innings and 69 runs, play only lasting three-quarters of an hour. Bowling from the same end he was so successful from the previous day, Collins captured the remaining 4 wickets, and thus equalled the late Colin Blyth's record made against Northampton by taking all 10 wickets. He nearly missed this distinction, as he failed to hold a hard chance by Richmond off Freeman when he had taken nine wickets. The redeeming feature of Notts innings was another capital display by Hardstaff, who batted an hour and three-quarters without giving a chance. Collins was given a great ovation when the game ended. SUSSEX V. LANCASHIRE.

DEFEAT OF LANCASHIRE.

The match at Hastings yesterday was over before lunch, Sussex beating Lancashire by nine wickets. Some such result had appeared probable from the position in which the game had been left overnight, when Lancashire, with six men out for 175, and Blomley unable to bat, were still 44 behind. Thanks, largely to E. Tyldesley, who batted most brilliantly, another 86 runs were added in an hour before the innings ended. Carrying out his bat, Tyldesley increased his 69 to 128, for which he was at the wickets nearly three hours. Overnight he had been missed when 56, but, apart from that, he made no serious mistake, and from start to finish his off-driving and cutting was superb. He hit eighteen fours and eight twos. Parkin helped to add 37 and Cook 48. During the innings Tate, who had already completed a thousand runs, took his hundredth wicket for the season, and, left with 43 to get, Sussex obtained the runs in twenty-five minutes. Score:—

SURREY V. LEICESTERSHIRE.

After a splendid struggle at the Oval yesterday, victory rested with Surrey by three wickets, Hitch driving Astill for six and winning the match. The pitch had become fast to lighten Surrey's task of getting 155 with their seven remaining wickets, and Knight and Abel, raising Thursday's 92 to 152, really made victory sure. Score:—

SOMERSET v. ESSEX.

Essex, with six wickets in hand, required only 50 runs to win at Taunton, but it took them over an hour yesterday to get them, and win by 5 wickets. At one time it seemed possible that the result might have been closer, for with 18 added to the overnight total Douglas was caught at the second attempt by Greswell. Then Perrin (not out 26), who had resolutely declined to hit, was joined by Dixon, who scored 22 in half an hour, and made the winning hit. Score:—

Somerset	216	113
Essex	244	87 (5)

HAMPSHIRE v. WORCESTERSHIRE.

Hampshire defeated Worcestershire at Southampton yesterday by 8 wickets. It was a splendid achievement by the home county, for they had all the worst of the wicket throughout the match. Any hope that the visitors may have entertained of averting a reverse disappeared very quickly yesterday morning, for Pearson was dismissed without increasing his 17, and of the other batsmen only Preece and Higgins reached double figures. Kennedy bowled so effectively that he took 6 wickets for 7 runs apiece. An hour and a half sufficed for Hampshire to dismiss their opponents for 128. The home side had to get 158 to win, a task which they accomplished with ease. Kennedy showed his versatility by playing a splendid innings of 67 for an hour and twenty minutes, hitting 1 six and 11 fours. He and Bowell (42) scored 110 before being separated. Only two wickets fell before Hampshire accomplished their object. Score:—

	1st Inns.	2nd Inns.

GOLF.

W. I. HUNTER AND AMERICAN CHAMPIONSHIP.

A Press Association telegram from New York states that, in connection with the conflicting reports which have been published concerning W. I. Hunter, the United States Golf Association officially stated yesterday that thus far Hunter's application for entry in the American Amateur Championship had not been received. Therefore, there was no occasion to determine the Association's official attitude, adding that the statements published that Hunter's application had been rejected were probably due to the confusion of names. The Association cannot accept responsibility for those statements.

AMERICAN PROFESSIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP.

The semi-final round of the American Professional Championship resulted as follows:—Sarazen beat Cruickshank, 3 and 2; French beat Golden, 8 and 7. We understand that the Club, which is one of the busiest in the South of Ireland, intend to employ a whole-time secretary.

YACHTING.

ROYAL SOUTH-WESTERN CLUB.

The weather at Plymouth yesterday was delightfully fine when the Royal South-Western Yacht Club's annual Regatta was held before a large concourse of spectators. The sea was smooth, but there was a nice sailing breeze from the westward. All the yachts were sent on courses which represented the figure eight, and as they took the eastern course they were all tested—reaching, beating and running. The sport was of the most interesting description, and the finishes were quite exciting. Details:—

NEWS FROM ALL PARTS

FATAL FALL FROM WINDOW.

A verdict of death from shock, following laceration of the brain, due to throwing himself from a window while in a state of temporary insanity, was returned by a Dublin jury in the Misericordiæ Hospital yesterday, in the case of Thomas Dollard (30), ex-soldier, 26 Gardiner's place, Dublin, who was admitted to the institution on the previous evening. He had been trying to inhale gas by means of a pipe from the gas stove, when his sister called for assistance and turned off the gas. Her brother then rushed to the window to throw himself out. She tried to prevent him, but he slipped through her hands and fell out.

A PRESENTATION.—The members of the Committee of the Union Friendly Society (Ireland) have presented Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Staff with a wedding gift. Mr. Staff is chairman of the Central Branch, and Mrs. Staff is deputy chairman. Canon Lewis-Crosby made the presentation, in felicitous terms, and Mr. and Mrs. Staff suitably replied.

LICENSING PROSECUTIONS.—For having committed a breach of the licensing laws, Joseph Fahy, Winetavern street, was fined £2 in the Dublin Police Court yesterday; and Peter North, Bridge street, Ringsend, was fined £1 for a similar offence. Two men found on the premises of Mr. Fahy were fined 10s. each. When a constable entered Mr. North's premises after 6 o'clock on Sunday he found about 20 people in the shop, and when he tried to get their names he was told to "get out, or he would be taken away dead."

TRANSFER OF SPIRIT LICENCES.—On the application of Mr. John A. Cullen, solicitor (Little and Cullen), a transfer was granted yesterday in Dublin Police Court of the publican's licence of 25 The Coombe, from Mr. John Fenelon to Mr. Daniel Charleton. Baker, an ex-officer of the British Army and a former member of the R.I.C. The evidence was that the prisoners, hearing that one of their comrades was being attacked, rushed out of barracks, armed with rifles and fixed bayonets. Baker was passing at the time, and he said that one of the men who resembled Townley plunged the bayonet into his right hip. The wound was 5 inches deep, and cut an artery.

JAIL FOR LARCENY.—Londonderry magistrates yesterday sent John McDermott, aged 16, of 91 St. Columb's Wells, to jail for a month for stealing £1 10s. from a shop in Strand road. Rev. Richard A. Lockhart, B.A., who was ordained at the recent conference in Dublin, has been accepted for foreign work, and has been appointed to Richmond College, Cape Coast, West Africa.

IRISH-AMERICAN BISHOP DEAD.

The Bishop of Syracuse, New York, the Right Rev. John Grimes, D.D., has died in his seventieth year.

Bishop Grimes was born near Limerick on December 18, 1852. He was educated at the National School and the Jesuits' Colleges in Ireland, and completed his studies at St. Hyacinth College, Quebec, and at Grand Seminary, Montreal, under the Sulpicians. He was ordained at Albany on February 19, 1882.

The late Bishop was one of the most notable Churchmen in America. His personal and pastoral influence was very wide, extending beyond his See, which comprised seven counties.

Very Rev. R. J. Colfer, O.C.C., was chosen Prior of Terenure College at the Provincial Chapter of the Carmelites. He is well known in educational circles in Dublin. For some years he has been in charge of the Novitiate House in Kinsale, where he worked with much success.

Solemn Requiem Mass was celebrated at the Abbey Church, Loughrea, by Rev. Father Francis, O.D.C., for the repose of the soul of the late Rev. Patrick Rushe, O.D.C., whose death took place at St. Mary's, Morehampton road, Dublin.

MAYO MAN SHOT.

INQUEST IN DUBLIN.

Dr. Louis Byrne, City Coroner, held an inquest at the Mater Hospital on the remains of Patrick Mullen (23), of Caralabin, Bunneconnell, Ballina, who died in the hospital on 15th inst. as the result of a gunshot wound in the left buttock.

Miss Mary Mullen identified the body, and said that her brother went out about five weeks ago on business. She did not know its nature. He had been a member of the I.R.A. for about five years. She next saw him at Swinford Infirmary. He was badly wounded. Her brother made no statement.

Thomas Jordan, uncle of deceased, corroborated. The men who brought his nephew to Dublin were not in uniform. The national Army had paid Mullen's expenses.

Dr. Lysaght, House Surgeon, stated that Mullen was brought to hospital in a Red Cross ambulance on the evening of the 15th inst., suffering from an oval-shaped wound in the left buttock. He died on the 16th, death being due to septicaemia and exhaustion.

Mr. Black (for next-of-kin) said that it was plain that deceased was killed in a military action.

A verdict in accordance with the medical evidence was returned, the jury recommending that the authorities be asked to defray the expenses of conveying the body to Ballina for interment.

REMARKABLE CASE.

DID NOT RECOGNISE HIS WIFE

David Pulford, of Holloway, London, was, at Bungay, Norfolk, Police Court yesterday ordered to pay 10s. per week towards the maintenance of a woman whom the Bench decided he had married in March, 1883.

Defendant did not admit that the woman was his wife, because he did not recognise her, and had not seen her since 1884.

Mrs. Larter, sister of the wife, identified Pulford as the man who married her sister, although she had not seen him since the wedding.

A child was born in 1884, and some days later the wife was removed to an asylum, where she remained until 1902.

In 1903, for a short time, Pulford paid money for his wife's maintenance, through a brother, without disclosing his address.

For the defence it was urged that there had been no desertion.

The Chairman, Sir Rider Haggard, said that the Bench found as a fact that Pulford had deserted his wife.

Notice of appeal was given.

FOREST FIRES IN FRANCE.

An increasing number of forest fires in the South of France, from the Bay of Biscay to the Italian frontier, is reported. The outbreaks are generally attributed to incendiarism. Telegrams received yesterday from Bordeaux, Perpignan, Marseilles, and Toulon report the outbreak of many fires, principally in the wooded hills. Several villages have narrowly escaped destruction, and the peasants have been fighting the flames day and night. In some cases the aid of troops has had to be enlisted.

A Moscow telegram to Copenhagen reports that a cargo of 8,300 tons of benzine left Novorossisk for England and one of 7,000 tons for America.

MALAHIDE DROWNING ACCIDENT.

SECOND SUBSCRIPTION LIST.

APPEAL ON BEHALF OF THE 3 WIDOWS AND 14 ORPHANS.

On Sunday, June 25th, three members of the Knights of the Silver Hook Sea Anglers' Club were drowned whilst fishing off Malahide. Hurried into Eternity in this swift and tragic manner, the unfortunate men left behind them widows and families who sorely feel the loss of the breadwinner at the present moment.

The deceased men's comrades of the Sea Anglers' Club are doing their utmost to alleviate the pitiful plight of the widows and children, but to cope with the pressing needs of the case it is imperative that they should receive assistance from the general public. With this object a fund has been opened, and the Committee feel sure that the kindly, generous Irish people will respond to the call in a manner worthy of their traditions.

A temporary Edifice has been erected on the site secured for the New Church, which is badly needed in this locality.
It is already crowded, and the Shrine has aroused a deep spirit of Devotion to Our Lady of Lourdes, with most beneficial results among the people.
The Accommodation afforded by the Temporary Structure is inadequate. The Administrator strongly appeals to the Catholics of Dublin and of Ireland for the means to undertake the building of the New Church. The district being one of the most densely populated and poorest in the city, little pecuniary aid can be expected from it.

Friends and Foes.

We are living in an age of political "sensations," and the ordinary citizen has become so much accustomed to kaleidoscopic changes in international affairs than he is no longer easily thrilled. The latest story, however, which is told with plenty of circumstantial detail, is calculated to make even the most phlegmatic Briton prick up his ears. France, it appears, has grown tired of the tortuous ways of the new diplomacy. She has tried in vain to establish her case in full against Germany and also against Russia, but has been thwarted in her aims in every case by the liberal policy of the British and, to a less extent, of the Italian Government. She has decided, therefore, to give the Reparations Commission—in whose hands the final decision concerning Germany lies—one more chance. If it should decide in her favour and uphold her maximum claims, with their accompanying "sanctions," all will be well. The Entente Cordiale will be maintained on its old footing, France will proceed to put her measures of coercion into effect, and the Paris Press will resound with the praise of British statesmanship. If, however, the Reparations Commission should refuse to support the French proposals en bloc, a very drastic step will be taken. France will throw the Entente to the winds. She will proceed to treat directly with the German Government instead of through the usual channels of the Allied Chancelleries, and will go to the length of entering into a sort of loose partnership with her traditional enemy, paying economic court at the same time to Moscow, in the hope of paving the way for a future Franco-Russo-German alliance.

That this story is not altogether a canard is proved by the fact that the French Press is discussing the possibility of such a development quite openly. France believes more than any other Power, not excluding Germany, in the efficacy of Realpolitik in international affairs, and will not allow anything in the nature of false sentiment to interfere with her material interests. An alliance of any kind between Russia, Germany, and France would result in the immediate isolation of Britain in Europe. Two important factors, however, must not be overlooked. France may be quite willing to make a rapprochement with Germany in the hope that she may be able in this way to secure more satisfactory reparations than via the Reparations Commission; but Germany must be consulted in the matter. A unilateral alliance would not bring much grist to the French mill, and until Germany declares her readiness to accept the friendship of France no further progress can be made with the scheme. Unfortunately for its advocates, Germany, in her present temper at any rate, is not at all likely to welcome overtures from Paris. She knows precisely the real nature of French feeling towards her and her people, and "incidents" such as the recent expulsion of German citizens from Alsace-Lorraine have intensified that bitter hatred of France, which is one of the most distressing features of contemporary German thought. From the point of view of the world's peace, this fact is deplorable; but it is a fact, and it cannot be ignored.

The other factor to which we have referred is even more important. A European alliance on the old pattern has virtually ceased to be possible, more especially if one of its objects be the isolation of Britain. What would be the first result of an attempt by France to extend her influence from Vladivostok to the Pyrenees? Britain immediately would be thrown into America's arms. The American people would recognise the immense danger to their interests as citizens of the world which would be constituted by a military hegemony in Europe, and an English-speaking alliance would become inevitable. Now France, with her keen sense of reality, is not in the least likely to run the risk of such a combination. Between them Britain and the United States control most of the money and the raw materials of the world. Alike as military or economic partners, they would be not only invincible, but almost irresistible, and the present rulers of the French Republic are far too shrewd to alienate their sympathies from France's cause. We are inclined to believe that the whole business is a ballon d'essai. M. Poincaré wants to find out how far he can go without causing an open breach with Britain, and the suggestion of a rapprochement with the Germans and the Bolsheviks has been thrown out by the Paris Press in order to test the trend of British opinion. Britain's policy rests, as it has rested for nearly twenty years, on the basis of the closest friendship with France. The Entente is the bulwark of Europe's peace, and so far, at any rate, as Britain is concerned, it will be maintained at all costs.

The White Man's Burden.

In the good old pre-war days Britain, the most comprehensive as well as the most successful bearer of the white man's burden, always had a little war on somewhere. Now the war to end war is over, and Britain is firmly, but politely, told whenever the odious question of comparative cash contributions comes up that she has emerged with the lion's share of the spoils. Measured in miles and populations it is a substantial share, indeed. If, as some claim, it can be summed up as the privilege of waging about twice as many little police wars as before, the advantages of being an international king of beasts become immediately questionable. These reflections are inspired by news recently received from Jerusalem that Wahabis, a predatory race of Die-Hard Arabs from the Hedjaz, had arrived suddenly in Transjordania and attacked the Beni Sakr tribes, whose lawful liege is the Emir of Transjordania, all parties concerned being under British protection. In this instance the Transjordanians seem to have inflicted a crushing defeat on the invading Hedjazites, and it is now reported that the Emir of Transjordania is contemplating a punitive expedition against the Wahabis. This is manifestly improper, because it appears that the Wahabis really intended to attack somebody else entirely and only fell upon the Beni Sakr tribes because they happened to take the wrong turning. Under these circumstances the King of the Hedjaz is almost certain to despatch a counter punitive expedition against Transjordania, and it will be a stroke of luck if the Sultan of Nejd and the King of Mesopotamia do not decide to take a hand in the game. Whatever the facts are, they point to one thing only, an additional straw to the burden of that patient white man, the British taxpayer. So far as he is concerned, the question of spoils, be it the lion's share or some other, does not arise.

A Nature Lover.

The sudden death of Mr. W. H. Hudson deprives British nature lovers of one of their most charming and industrious entertainers. Between 1885, when his first book, "The Purple Land," appeared, and 1919, in which year he published "The Book of a Naturalist," Mr. Hudson produced a score of volumes in which nature lore, philosophy and the reminiscences of a born wanderer are combined by a master of style and lucid expression. Himself an observer of Nature rather than a naturalist, Hudson did not write for naturalists, but for a wider public. Sir William Beach Thomas has acutely said that the English are a nation of naturalists, and in a large sense it is true. Certainly W. H. Hudson claimed among his readers many thousands of men and women who would never have claimed the title of naturalist for themselves; but then he was a wanderer in foreign lands and to such, when they come to us with their sagas of the sea or, as may be, of the pampas, we who plough the land with horses, or only the world's ledgers with pens, and whose hearts are always ill at ease, welcome such a one whether his talk be of birds or men, of ships or women, or the people of the wild. To the man in the street Hudson discovered Patagonia, and it is his story of his wanderings in the lands beyond the River Plate that will live longest. Strangely enough, his one essay in fiction, "El Ombu," a powerful but sombre piece of writing, had but small success. We are as the world chooses to see us. It will never let its favourite clown become a tragedian, though he should exhibit the gifts of a Kean or a Macready. It found in Hudson a worthy successor to Richard Jeffreys and gave him no encouragement to become a Thomas Hardy. He accepted the verdict and remained for twenty years a wise interpreter of birds to man, and a sure guide to the green mansions in which the former dwell and to which the latter, if thought is to remain green and life spacious, must eventually turn.

Postal Services.

We are glad to learn that the Irish Post Office is losing no time in restoring its essential services throughout the country. Since the present disturbances began one of the principal aims of the irregulars has been the destruction of all means of communication. Railway lines have been torn up, bridges have been wrecked. Telegraph poles have been felled and wires have been cut, with the result that business in many parts of Ireland has been almost completely paralysed. With admirable enterprise the postal authorities have succeeded in maintaining all three services—postal, telegraphic, and telephonic—in all but a few isolated areas. Telegraph lines have been restored nearly everywhere, and Killarney with County Cork is the only place which is still beyond the reach of a telegram. The occupation of Dundalk at the beginning of the week by the irregulars caused a temporary suspension of direct services to Belfast, but these have now been restored, and in a few days it is hoped that everything will be normal. Nothing demoralises people so quickly as the collapse of postal and telegraphic services. Business is impossible without them, and their maintenance in the teeth of a well-organised campaign of destruction has contributed in no small measure to the Government's success in its campaign.

OBITUARY.

REV. VICTOR LENTAIGNE, S.J.

The death took place yesterday at Rathfarnham Castle of the Rev. Victor Lentaigne, S.J., in his 74th year.

Father Lentaigne, who was a brother of the late Sir John Lentaigne, received his early education in Clongowes Wood College, where he subsequently spent the greater part of his career as a priest. For a short time he acted as a chaplain at Alexandria, Egypt, but with this exception his life was devoted to teaching at Clongowes, where he was held in affectionate regard by the students.

Father Lentaigne had in an especial degree the faculty of securing and retaining the confidence and esteem of his pupils, and for this reason the news of his death will be received with profound sorrow in whatever part of the world Old Clongownians may be found.

He had been ailing for some time, and had gone to Rathfarnham Castle recently in order to recuperate his health.

Office and High Mass will be celebrated at 11 o'clock on Monday at St. Francis Xavier's Church, Gardiner street, Dublin.

MR. PATRICK MURRAY.

The death of Mr. Patrick Murray, of Verbena House, Iona road, Drumcondra, will be heard of with regret by his many friends. Mr. Murray was a native of the County Westmeath, and came to Dublin when he was quite a young man. He was successful in the building trade, and was the owner of considerable house property in Drumcondra and the adjoining districts. He was one of the founders of the old Drumcondra Town Commissioners, which has ceased to exist. He served for a few years in the Dublin Municipal Council, and rendered valuable help to Drumcondra Hospital and the Hospital for Incurables. Two of his sons are solicitors and three are medical doctors—Dr. Frank Murray, Dr. Patrick Murray, chief tuberculosis officer for the City of Dublin, and Dr. Joseph Murray, medical officer to the 1st Eastern Division of the national Army.

The funeral, which is private, takes place this morning to Glasnevin Cemetery.

GENERAL SIR NEVIL MACREADY.

General Sir Nevil Macready, Commanding-in-Chief the Forces in Ireland, arrived at Kingstown yesterday evening, shortly after 7 o'clock, on board a destroyer, and disembarked at the Victoria Wharf. He drove in a motor car to Dublin.

HOSPITAL APPOINTMENT.

Dr. James Ryan, M.B., B.Ch., D.P.H., has been unanimously elected Assistant Physician to the City Hospital for Diseases of the Skin and Cancer, Holles street.

"BROCKEN SPECTRE" FILMED.

PARIS, Thursday.

Photographers belonging to the party that has accompanied Professor Lecarme, the French scientist, to the summit of Mont Blanc, the highest mountain in Europe, have succeeded in filming the so-called Brocken Spectre for the first time.

The Brocken Spectre is an optical phenomenon seldom witnessed, and caused by the sun's projection of the shadows of the summit and the objects on it in gigantic proportions on a wall of mist. The apparition gave rise to a number of legends in connection with the Brocken Mountain, in the Harz region.—(Reuter.)

Benjamin Ernest Spiller, 54, has been committed for trial at Portsmouth on a charge of bigamously marrying Jane Rebecca Williams, aged 74, at Portsmouth a few weeks ago. This was Mrs. Williams's sixth wedding.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

Now that Dundalk and Greenore are in Free State hands again, it may be admitted that the irregulars coup in capturing them caused much anxiety here earlier in the week, and somewhat discounted the successes of the national troops in the South. The Evening News to-night says that what has struck English people with regard to the fighting in Ireland is "the relatively small number of combatants, and the large size of the audience." It goes on to contrast the general apathy of the people, who "seem to have contented themselves in most instances with cheering for the victors, with the spirited action of the Mallowites who, "led by the Roman Catholic priest and the Protestant clergyman, occupied their bridge and bade the rebels do their worst."

Paris newspapers are apt to reflect the views of individuals or coteries, rather than public opinion as a whole. Consequently, unless one happens to know by whom a paper is inspired, it is impossible to say what weight is to be attached to it. I do not know for whom L'Œuvre speaks, but if for the French Government then we are on the eve of a very curious development in international affairs. For it distinctly suggests that, as France has failed to bring the rest of the Allies to her way of thinking, she should make a separate agreement with Germany.

"That," it remarks, "is a necessity which has long been foreseen by many statesmen. We have reason to believe that such necessity has come to impose itself on M. Poincaré, and that the direct action of which he has so much spoken lately may very likely not be so prejudicial to the Reich. On the contrary."

Now it is perfectly true that some French statesmen have been less intransigeant in their attitude to the hereditary foe than others. Witness the trade agreement which M. Loucheur negotiated not long ago with the late Dr. Rathenau. What one does not quite understand is why the French Premier, if he is a convert to this policy, should have shown himself so stiff in London in adhering to the very drastic plan for coercing Germany which he there put forward, and in refusing the compromise suggested by Mr. Lloyd George.

FRANCE AND GERMANY.

If it be really true that the French Government is prepared to enter into independent negotiations with Germany, I do not think that this country would object—provided, of course, that its interests were not prejudiced. Our object, as always, is to secure the peace of Europe, so that all nations, our late enemies included, may be able to resume their trade with us, and so reduce the still heavy volume of unemployment. If France thinks that separate negotiations with Germany will be more likely to produce tangible results than the collective influence of the Allies, there is no reason—subject to the proviso already mentioned—why we should stand in her way.

But I am rather afraid that at present L'Œuvre speaks only for a small section, and that the views of the French Government as a whole are more accurately reflected by the Echo de Paris, which still insists upon "the military occupation of the Rhine bridgeheads and the economic occupation of the left bank of the Rhine until the Reich fulfils its obligations," and by the Journal, which declares that if Germany defaults, or is given a moratorium without adequate guarantees, "the occupation of the Ruhr will be carried out within forty-eight hours." Perhaps, when M. Poincaré addresses the General Council of the Meuse on Sunday he will throw some light on a very perplexing situation.

Dame Genevieve Ward, the doyenne of the English stage, died this morning, aged eighty-five. She was an American by birth, and when quite a girl contracted a marriage with a Russian Count, who turned out a rogue. Afterwards she went on the operatic stage and sang with success in Europe, England, and the United States. But then another tragedy befel her, and an attack of diphtheria robbed her of her singing voice. Nothing daunted—throughout her life she was remarkable for courage—she turned to the "legitimate" drama, and achieved a second reputation as a tragedienne. Her greatest triumph was in "Forget-me-Not," with which she toured all over the English-speaking world, but she had many other successful parts, and went on playing until she was well over eighty.

MINISTERS' BOOKS.

Are all our statesmen going to write books this autumn? Mr. Lloyd George is supposed to be hard at work on his "ninety thousand pounder," Mr. Churchill is reported to be putting the finishing touches to his little work for which he is to receive a mere trifle of £15,000, and now it is stated that the enterprising American publishers of the ex-Kaiser's book of memoirs have induced Mr. Asquith to write a reply to it from the British point of view. The price is not mentioned, but is said to be "well up among high figures."

Advantage is being taken of the absence of the Prime Minister from town to dismantle the temporary hutments which were erected in the garden of No. 10 Downing street during the war. The huts were used as offices for the Imperial War Cabinet Secretariat, and, as they were comparatively small, it should not be more than a few weeks before the gardeners succeed in completing the work which has just been begun by a firm of house-breakers.

Air Commodore L. E. O. Charlton, who, it is announced this evening, is to command No. 7 Group of the Royal Air Force in succession to Air Commodore T. C. R. Higgins, who has been appointed Director of Training and Staff Duties at the Air Ministry, will be remembered as one of the first of the pilots who went to France in the early days of August, 1914. He flew at once to the war area, and within a few hours of his arrival had given valuable information of the German advance to the British G.H.Q., as a result of which changes were made in the disposition of our forces. After a strenuous period of service in France he commanded the administrative wing of the Royal Flying Corps at Farnborough, and was then posted to the War Office. His next post was that of British Air Attaché at Washington, which he continued to hold till recently.

The near approach of the football season is shown by the announcement that two London clubs will hold practice matches to-morrow. For the past month or so the teams have been in training for the League games. Arrangements have already been made for the next final match in the competition for the English Cup, which will be played for the first time at Wembley. The stadium of the great Empire Exhibition is to have accommodation for 120,000 people, of whom about thirty thousand will be under cover. The total length of the terrace steps encircling the sports ground will be thirty-two miles. The first spade was dug into the Exhibition grounds by the Duke of York in February last, and it is estimated that the work will be completed by next March. In any case, the stadium will be ready by that date for the Cup final.

NEW TRIPLE ALLIANCE SUGGESTION.

FRANCE, RUSSIA, AND GERMANY.

DIRECT NEGOTIATIONS ON GERMAN SOIL.

BERLIN AND ENTENTE WEAKNESS.

There is much talk in France of a new European combination. A well-known French deputy is to meet Russian Soviet delegates in Germany early next month to discuss the possibility of reviving old political ties.

It is freely stated that a rapprochement between France and Russia would pave the way to a Franco-German Treaty. If the decision of the Reparations Commission on the question of a moratorium to Germany is not acceptable to France, it is considered certain that M. Poincaré will enter into direct negotiations with Herr Wirth.

In a joint Note the Allies have informed the German Government that the £2,000,000 on account of clearing house (pre-war) debts, due last Wednesday, must be paid within four weeks. The agreement under which these payments are made will then be terminated, and the Allied Governments will make separate agreements with Germany in respect of the balances due to them.

FRANCE'S NEW POLICY.

CALL FOR DIRECT ACTION.

The announcement that France is to negotiate with Russia on matters of mutual concern has turned the attention of the French politicians to the possibility of a Franco-Russian-German combination.

Certainly the suggestion that M. Poincaré may approach the German Chancellor direct on the question of reparations payments which "may not be so prejudicial to the Reich," is not refuted.

The Paris Œuvre states that, questioned on Wednesday evening, with regard to the course of events, M. Poincaré replied, with a smile—"It is the Reparations Commission's move, but it is natural and quite in order that the Commission should require some time to come to its decision. We are going to have a four days' interval."

"Certain signs and certain rumours," says the Œuvre, "allow of the conclusion that the interval of which M. Poincaré speaks holds surprises in store for us. We must endeavour to agree with Germany. We have reason to believe that such a necessity has come to impose itself on M. Poincaré, and that the direct action of which he has so much spoken lately may very likely not be so prejudicial to the Reich."

The Gaulois says:—"If within a week no agreement has been reached, there is nothing to prove that direct pourparlers will not be undertaken between Paris and Berlin."

MISSION TO THE SOVIET.

STEP TOWARDS ALLIANCE.

News has been received from Paris that M. Herriot, Mayor of Lyons, and a well-known Radical Deputy, is going on a mission to Soviet Russia with a view to re-establishing the old economic and political relations between the two countries.

M. Herriot is expected to meet M. Tchitcherin, the Bolshevist Foreign Commissary, and M. Litvinoff, the Trade Commissary, in a German town on September 3.

Dr. Wirth, the German Chancellor, is reported to have expressed himself as being delighted to hear that the French and Rusian delegates would meet on German soil. He would, he said, assure the security of the visitors and the secrecy of their deliberations.

Dr. Wirth added, according to the Paris Temps, "At a time when the Entente is cooling, the resumption of relations between Russia and France, those great democracies, will be a step towards a treaty with Germany, that other great European democracy, and between the three they could prevent all future war."

SOVIET'S INVITATION.

Interviewed by Reuter's Correspondent in Paris yesterday regarding his mission, M. Herriot said that he had been acting as go-between for certain Soviet representatives and the French Government. Pourparlers were proceeding the more favourably that they were helped by the political detente now taking place in Russia.

He was ready to accept the invitation of the Soviet Government, and would go to Russia as a sincere observer, and with the intention of doing something useful in the light of day towards a rapprochement between the two peoples for the peace of the world.

The French Government would be informed of his departure, but he would go on his own responsibility for the purpose of accomplishing a duty to truth and humanity.

PREMIER'S INDIA SPEECH.

"SWARAJ" DENUNCIATION.

MADRAS, Friday.

A public meeting of the citizens of Madras, representing all shades of political opinion, has been held here to protest against Mr. Lloyd George's speech on the Indian Civil Service. Mr. Seshagiri Ayyar, the Moderate leader, presided, and Mrs. Besant was amongst the speakers.

Mr. Ayyar characterised the Premier's speech as reactionary, and said that it had made the work of the Indian Government more difficult, and had alienated the sympathies of all those who had been steadfast and loyal to the British Throne.

The speech, he said, created the impression that Great Britain could not be trusted to keep true to its pledges, and a greater disservice could not have been done to Great Britain.

A resolution was moved declaring that the meeting recorded its strong and emphatic disapproval of the Premier's speech, but it was not carried, the meeting apparently not considering it strong enough, and supporting an extremist motion was disallowed by the Chairman, thanking Mr. Llyod George for making the speech, but urging all parties in the country to join in the national battle for "Swaraj" (Home Rule).—(Reuter.)

BAVARIAN REICH DISPUTE.

CONCILIATORY ARRANGEMENT REPUDIATED.

MUNICH, Thursday.

At to-day's conference of the Coalition Parties, in which all the Ministers took part, it was decided that the agreements reached between the Berlin and Munich Governments were unacceptable in the form in which they had been concluded, and that a number of amplifications were necessary. A ministerial conference was subsequently held, at which it was decided immediately to make the necessary representations to the Government of the Reich.—(Reuter.)

[Count Lerchenfeld, the Bavarian Prime Minister, agreed last week with Dr. Wirth, the German Chancellor, to accept the law for the protection of the Republic. Now Bavaria repudiates this agreement.]

SOUTH HACKNEY ELECTION

RECOUNT DEMANDED.

Polling took place in South Hackney yesterday, the candidates being Captain Erskine Bolst, Coalition, and Mr Holford Knight, Labour.

At 12.30 the figures were declared as follows:—
Captain Erskine Bolst (Coalition) 9,116
Mr. Holford Knight (Labour) ... 9,044

A recount has been demanded.

During the day little interest in the contest was apparent, and voting was slow, but in the evening, with the return of the electors from their work, there was a rush to the polling stations. The poll closed at 9 o'clock, and the votes were subsequently counted at the Town Hall, where crowds awaited the result.

The record of the re-count was:—
Erskine Bolst 9,118
Holford Knight 9,046

CLEARING HOUSE PAYMENT.

RESPITE OF ONE MONTH.

BERLIN, Friday.

The British Government has communicated to the German Embassy in London the joint Allied reply to Germany's Note of July 14th, in which she declared her inability to make the monthly Clearing House payments due from her.

The reply states that the Allies will demand within four weeks from August 15, full payment of the £2,000,000, due on account of Clearing House payments.

After that date the Allies intend to denounce the Agreement of June 10th, 1921, in order to leave the way clear for the conclusion of separate agreements with the German Government in respect of the balances due to them.

The new Agreement will be submitted to the Reparations Commission for approval.

It is semi-officially added here that no further cash payments in connection with pre-war debts will be demanded from the German Government until the middle of September.—(Reuter.)

GERMANY'S FINANCES.

ALLIED INVESTIGATION.

PARIS, Friday.

The Reparations Commission has unanimously decided to send Sir John Bradbury and M. Mauclere, President of the Committee of Guarantees, to Berlin, in order to obtain necessary information as regards the financial situation.

Sir John Bradbury and other members of the Commission will leave to-morrow by the Warsaw express, and will remain a few days in Berlin, where they will probably meet Dr. Hermes, the German Minister of National Economy, and Herr Bergmann.

The decision to send Sir John Bradbury and M. Mauclere to Germany was taken at yesterday's plenary sitting of the Reparations Commission, with the view to hastening the negotiations with the Reich, for the purpose of coming to a decision in regard to Germany's request for a moratorium.

OPTIMISM IN BERLIN.

BERLIN, Friday.

In announcing the Reparations Commission's decision to send Sir John Bradbury, the British Delegate on the Commission and M. Mauclere, the President of the Guarantees Committee, on a mission to Berlin, the semi-official Agency says:—"The primary purpose of the visit is a discussion with the German Government on the subject of reparations."

The Agency concludes that the Reparations Commission's decision in connection with the moratorium has been postponed.

Diplomatic circles in Berlin regard the fact that the Commission is taking time to consider the moratorium question as a favourable sign, but they express the hope that the ultimate decision will not be delayed too long as "the ship is already sinking and relief should be forthcoming promptly."—(Reuter.)

In his address of welcome to President Ebert yesterday on the occasion of the inauguration of the overseas week at Hamburg, Herr Diester, Mayor of Hamburg, said that Germany did not ask for mercy, but for an expert examination of the economic situation. Such examination, he was confident, would show that the methods hitherto pursued in the matter of reparations should be dropped.

In his reply, Herr Ebert said that he cherished the hope that the law of economic interdependence of all nations would not permit of a great nation being denied the right of existence.—(Reuter.)

RAILWAY SERVICES.

POSITION ON CHIEF LINES.

Inquiries at Kingsbridge yesterday showed that the main line services on the Great Southern and Western Railway were being maintained as far as Dundrum, Co. Tipperary. No trains are running north of Tuam, but there is a service from Limerick to Tuam, and from Limerick Junction to Kilmallock. Cork is still cut off from Dublin, by rail, either directly or via Waterford, in consequence of the destruction of the railway bridge at Mallow. Neither is it yet possible to reach Cork by rail from Youghal.

On the Great Northern line, trains will run from Dublin to Belfast as from to-day. The line was clear yesterday, but owing to the condition of the overhead bridge at Kellystown it was decided not to run the Dublin train further. On arriving there, the passengers detrained and joined another train which had come down to meet them from Belfast. In this way the gap was bridged, and the journey was completed without further incident. The morning mail is announced to leave Amiens street for Belfast at 6.35 a.m.

For some time past, owing to wires being cut, rails taken out, trains derailed, and the line otherwise damaged, some of the passenger trains on the Dublin and South-Eastern line have been interfered with, and the normal train service interrupted, with the result that the trains have been reaching their destinations behind the scheduled time through no fault of the company.

GREAT SOUTHERN AND WESTERN RAILWAY.

On inquiry at Kingsbridge yesterday we learned that the Great Southern and Western Railway officials considered the destruction of the huge masonry bridge at Mallow, covering a valley 500 feet wide with ten spans at a height of 80 feet, as by far the most serious impediment to the restoration of communications to Cork and Kerry, though the enormity is almost equalled by the destruction of another bridge near Durrow Station, on the Dungarvan line, on the road to Waterford, which also spanned a deep ravine at a height of 60 to 70 feet.

We were informed that until a close examination took place an estimate of the time to effect repairs could not be arrived at, but best opinion is that it will occupy not less than twelve months.

The line from Carlow to Kilkenny—temporarily broken on Thursday—also the section between Ennis and Athenry, were restored, and a limited service is in operation as from to-day. The temporary dislocation at Dundrum, on the way to Limerick Junction, it was also hoped will be made right in a day or two.

ITALY'S ATTITUDE CONFIRMED.

TURIN, Friday.

Signor Facta, the Italian Prime Minister, arrived here this morning and had a conference with Signori Schanzer and Paratore, Minister of Foreign Affairs and Treasury, respectively. He informed the two Ministers that he entirely approved of the attitude at the London Reparations Conference, and that it was in complete harmony with the views of the Government.—(Reuter.)

Recently bicycles were taken by irregulars at Moycullen from three young women. The women made a gallant fight to retain their machines, but were compelled to give them up at the point of the revolver.

"STAND FIRM."

MR. GRIFFITH'S LAST MESSAGE.

LOVE TO THE IRISH PEOPLE.

"Let the people stand firm for the Free State. It is their national need and economic salvation.

"Love to the Irish people, to all my colleagues and friends."

This is the last message of Mr. Arthur Griffith to the Irish people. It is published in fac-simile in to-day's issue of Young Ireland, Mr. Griffith's own paper.

The message was dated 15th April, 1922, and, regarding the circumstances in which it was written, Young Ireland says:—

"This last message . . . was written by Mr. Griffith on the occasion of his visit to Sligo last April. As the Irish people will recollect, some person named Pilkington had 'proclaimed' the meeting and had announced his intention of preventing it being held at any cost.

"President Griffith replied to that insolent challenge to him, as head of the Irish nation, by going to Sligo to assert the right of liberty of speech. Before doing so, and anticipating the possibility of serious consequences arising out of the actions of those who had seized the town of Sligo, he wrote and entrusted to a friend a brief statement, the first part of which was concerned with the disposal of his private affairs in the event of anything happening to him. The second part of the statement was a message to the Irish nation. . . .

"That visit of President Griffith to Sligo was remarkable for two things. First, it was a striking example of the personal courage of the man, and, secondly, because of the fact that it was one of those gestures of determined action which made the Irish people realise that he, as head of the nation, would not brook any attempt to destroy the rights and liberties of the people.

"Fortunately he returned safely from Sligo and was spared to the nation for a few months longer. His statement remained unopened until a couple of days after his death."

WHY HE RESIGNED.

MR. GAVAN DUFFY EXPLAINS.

Mr. G. Gavan Duffy, writing from 39 Mespil road, Dublin, under date 11th August, says:—

"I have deferred publishing my reasons for resignation from the Cabinet with a view to stating them first at the meeting of Dail Eireann, but the further prorogation constrains me to make them public now. Let me say at once that the story that I resigned because I was hampered in foreign affairs is without any foundation; on the contrary, I had a very free hand in my department, and received the full and generous co-operation of the Cabinet whenever occasion arose to ask for it.

"When the war began I was at variance with most of my colleagues in the Dail Cabinet on certain points in the Provisional Government's draft Constitution, but the outbreak of war relegated this issue to the background. New problems arose, and unhappily I soon found myself seriously opposed to the official policy upon several matters of some public importance. However, I felt bound in the present crisis, to subordinate my personal views to those of the Cabinet, with which I was in agreement on the predominant military question, until I was eventually compelled to break, upon issues involving a very grave matter of principle.

"THE SUPPRESSION OF THE DAIL COURTS.

"On July 25th it was determined to abolish the Supreme Court and its judges, rather than meet in open Court an application for release on writ of habeas corpus, made on behalf of one of the military prisoners in Mountjoy. I resigned because I should otherwise have been taking responsiblity for a decision which, in my eyes, constituted a very dangerous attack upon the first principles of our freedom and democracy.

"The application in question had been made to Mr. Justice Crowley, who, in the usual way, and quite properly, had called upon the Minister of Defence, and the Governor of Mountjoy to justify the prisoner's detention, in order that the Court might satisfy itself as to the merits of the case. The hearing was fixed for July 26th before Justices Meredith, Davitt and Crowley; but on the night before, a decree (of doubtful validity) went forth, purporting to extinguish the Court, and with it the Judges, in order to prevent the application for release from being heard.

"Our military authorities had themselves publicly recognised the habeas corpus jurisdiction of this Court in a case brought against them three months previously, and this was the Supreme Court, and these the Supreme Court Judges, that we had ourselves set up two years before to supplant the Four Courts. An informal attempt, not to suppress the Court, but to suspend its ordinary sittings during the present war, had already been made, but this admittedly, did not affect the inherent right of its Judges to grant habeas corpus, since that right is so essential a part of the Judge's office that he may, in cases of urgency, exercise it in his bedroom.

"HABEAS CORPUS."

"Under the laws adopted by Dail, habeas corpus, which goes back 700 years, is the first and stoutest bulwark of the rule of law in securing personal liberty:—'No freeman shall be taken and imprisoned, unless by the lawful judgment of his peers or by the law of the land.' And to-day, if any citizen be wrongfully kept in gaol, his only way of forcing the prison gate is by seeking out a writ of habeas corpus.

"The transcendent importance of this safeguard against the Executive is well recognised amongst us; only the other day, the Provisional Government, with the concurrence of the Dail Ministers, examined, clause by clause, a draft Constitution for Ireland. It will be seen from the published draft that, at that time, habeas corpus was deemed so vital and fundamental a right that it had to be scrupulously secured to the Irish people, even in time of war, by being incorporated in the Constitution itself, instead of being left, like so many important matters, to the ordinary law, which can too readily be changed in an emergency.

"Six short weeks cannot have changed right into wrong.

"Accordingly, Ministers, besides being debarred on principle, had actually debarred themselves by their own conduct from suppressing the writ of habeas corpus, and arbitrary interference with the Judges, in this matter above all, should have been unthinkable, for we are not living under the Stuarts. A bad blunder was committed in the haste of the moment, and the Government's incursion upon the Court, where a claim against the Government itself was on the point of being heard, appears to me to inflict a graver injury upon the cause which our Ministers are defending than anything that they could have had to fear from the Court. In all probability, the Judges would have dismissed the application by a military captive taken in arms, if they had sat and heard the case for the authorities; but, even if that particular applicant had succeeded, the Government could readily have taken steps within its own legal powers to render its position unassailable in law with regard to the other military prisoners, so that the extreme and drastic act of suppression is not extenuated by any exigency of war.

"NO ADEQUATE ALTERNATIVE TRIBUNAL."

"I see no answer to those considerations. True, we still have the King's Inns. But Ministers must feel some diffidence about championing again their own Justices and Judges of the old régime, most of whom a year or two ago would have welcomed any opportunity of lodging our present rulers in jail, fully persuaded that there could be no better way of serving King and country. The war record of that Judiciary is still branded upon the public memory, and its pundits have not hitherto been conspicuous for the special qualities of mind and heart necessary to fill the very delicate rôle of arbiters between the citizen and the Executive.

"While much can be said for a considered scheme, designed to unify the inchoate Dail legal system and the more efficient machinery of the Four Courts, a process which, under pressure of a passing inconvenience, would abandon all control to the Judges appointed by Dublin Castle seems to me, whatever their attainments, to be indefensible. But the alleged shortcomings of the Dail Courts generally are really immaterial in the immediate issue; the vital point is that no Government may annihilate its tribunals and its Judges at the moment when their most sacred jurisdiction over the Executive itself is being invoked.

"THE RULE OF LAW."

"A strong and victorious Government like ours has nothing to lose and everything to gain by fearlessly upholding the rule of law; and a national Government is imperatively bound to do so in a country where the people are too long accustomed to detesting and despising the law as a tool of alien aggression, and where the moral sense of the community is recovering slowly from the effects of three years of brutality and terror. If the first military duty of the present Administration be to secure the authority of the Irish people, its first civil duty in the institution of ordered government in Ireland is to establish the Rule of Law by restoring public confidence in the administration of justice.

"And what will the magnificent courage and restraint displayed by our soldiers in the field and their military victory profit democracy in this country, unless we can rely upon our civic guardians, on their side, to cherish and preserve the basic principles upon which the personal liberty of every Irish citizen depends?"

CORK TOWNS CAPTURED.

FIERCE FIGHT IN A VILLAGE.

BIG HAUL OF ARMS AND PRISONERS.

DUBLIN OFFICER WOUNDED.

Macroom and Mill street have been taken by the national troops, and after a brisk engagement at Kildorrery fifty prisoners and arms and ammunition were captured.

Irregulars descended on the town of Monaghan yesterday, directed a heavy fire on the military barracks, and took a large sum of money from one of the three local banks.

FIGHT FOR KILDORRERY.

OFFICIAL REPORT.

The following official bulletin was issued from the Publicity Department, Field General Headquarters, South-Western Command, last night at 9.45:—

"Macroom was captured by the troops under General Dalton yesterday.

"Millstreet, the last irregular post in this command, was captured to-day by the troops under Brigadier O'Daly. Shortly after Commandant-General Galvin, who was also converging on the post, arrived in the town.

"The irregulars attacked Galbally on Thursday night, but were driven off and retreated to Kildorrery. Troops under General Murphy moved on the latter place this morning, and reached the village about 8.30 o'clock. A fierce fight for the position ensued, and the troops finally carried the village, taking 27 prisoners, 50 rifles, as many revolvers, several Thompson guns, signalling and engineering apparatus, explosives, ammunition, bombs, mines, a Ford motor car, beds and bedding.

"The attack was carried out by Commandant P. O'Connor, of the Dublin Guards, who, unfortunately, was seriously wounded in the arm by a bomb.

"Ammunition of a most appalling type was found on the irregulars who were taken prisoners."

REORGANISATION.

IRREGULARS NEW TACTICS.

(BY COURIER TO LIMERICK.)

MILLSTREET, Friday.

Macroom has fallen to the forces of General Dalton, operating from Cork City, without any resistance from the irregulars. The latter retreated towards the Dingle peninsula and the hills of West Cork.

I am now able to state positively what I have anticipated before—that the irregulars' plan of campaign has been entirely altered. They have determined that the national forces operating in this area are too strong to be met by open warfare.

They are disbanding all men in whose steadfastness they cannot absolutely rely, and are re-organising into small columns of about 35 men, divided into squads of five, with a squad leader. With these forces they intend to carry on a war "by the same methods and in the same manner as the war was waged against the English." (The words are those of the irregulars' higher command.)

LOOTING FORBIDDEN.

To their credit it must be said that strict orders have gone out that there must be no more undisciplined looting, and any looter is to be shot. At the same time, the "authorised" burning of barracks, courthouses, and workhouses goes on unchecked.

On my way here through Liscarrol, Kanturk, and Millstreet blakened ruins of these buildings everywhere met my gaze. In Macroom, in addition to those buildings which are always so favoured, the castle has been burnt.

In the course of the late operations many of the irregular leaders have been captured in a manner which would suggest that they are not loth to be made prisoners. In Kanturk, McGrath, the Communist, who was excommunicated from the Roman Catholic Church, has been captured.

SWOOP ON MONAGHAN.

BANKS RAIDED.

Irregulars made a vigorous swoop on Monaghan yesterday, attacking the national garrison, who are quartered at the Courthouse, and raiding simultaneously all the banks in the town.

The houses opposite the military quarters in Church square were occupied by irregulars, who kept up an incessant fire on the Courthouse. The garrison, which was small, vigorously returned the fire, and succeeded in repelling the attack, which began at 1.40 and lasted for 30 minutes.

An officer of the national force Lieutenant Gillanders, was shot dead. The casualties on the irregulars' side are unknown, but it is believed that three were wounded.

A rush was made for the Belfast Bank, but the door was slammed in time. Shots were fired into the bank, and a number of civilians, including an ex-soldier who lost a leg in the war, rushed up the street and opened fire on the raiders, who were forced to retire.

At the Ulster Bank a very exciting scene took place. All the money in the public office was seized, but the manager steadfastly refused to give up the keys of the strong room. Shots were fired over his head and he was threatened, but he stuck to his resolve, and the raiders had to leave.

During the attack there was intense excitement in the town. Nothing could be heard but heavy firing, the crash of broken glass, and the screams of women.

At 2.16 the firing ceased. The raiders got away, but one arrest was made within a few minutes, and later a number of other men were arrested.

The national garrison has been reinforced.

It is said that the raiders carried off £900 in the direction of the mountains.

Neighbouring villages are also reported to have been raided.

HISTORIC CASTLE BURNED.

IRREGULAR FORCES BREAKING UP.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

CLONMEL, Friday.

The destruction of Mitchelstown Castle, the historic seat of the Dowager Countess of Kingston, is the latest act of incendiarism to be carried out by the irregulars. From a gentleman who arrived here this morning after a journey through to Cork, I learned that the mansion was completely destroyed by fire last night, together with the unique collection of books, paintings, and historic relics, which had been preserved in the castle for over a century. Up to some time ago the mansion had been occupied by the irregulars, but, with the approach of the national forces, it was apparently decided to vacate it, and to give it to the flames. This act of wanton destruction, my informant told me, has aroused the greatest indignation in the locality.

The remains of Corporal Fogarty and Private Bergin, two of the three national soldiers who were killed in Wednesday's ambush at Woodroofe, were removed to St. Peter and Paul's Parish Church, Clonmel, last night, the body of Volunteer Roche, of Cahir, being conveyed to his native town. This morning Solemn Requiem High Mass was offered up for the repose of their souls by Father Sinnott, C.C., assisted by a large number of the other clergy, and there was a representative attendance of the general public. Much sympathy is felt with the relatives of the fallen soldiers, who met their deaths with such shocking suddenness. The ambush marks the opening in this county of the new campaign on which the irregulars are embarking.

From trustworthy sources I understand that they are now breaking up into small columns locally with the object of harassing the troops in the towns which have been recently occupied.

DUBLIN STREET AMBUSHES.

MILITARY LORRIES UNDER FIRE.

A CIVILIAN KILLED.

Members of the national Army were ambushed in two parts of Dublin yesterday. In one case a man was killed and three other persons were wounded. In the other case there were no injuries.

SHOTS AND A BOMB.

ASSAILANTS' FLIGHT.

At 5 o'clock a Ford motor car, in which were seated four men in mufti, who were stated to be officers of the national Army, was attacked at Whitefriar place. The car came from the direction of Camden street and was going along Aungier street when two men fired several shots from revolvers.

The car was brought to a standstill and the occupants, firing at their assailants, got out and chased them. The locality lends itself to facility of escape, and the officers returning to the car, continued their journey. They had got only as far as Great Longford street—a short distance away—when a bomb was hurled at the car, and a deafening explosion was heard.

None of the occupants was injured, but it was found that four civilians had been wounded.

John Byrne, aged 23 years, of Partridge terrace, Inchicore, was lying on the ground bleeding from the chest. He had two bullet wounds, and his condition was hopeless. He was taken to the Adelaide Hospital and died soon afterwards.

James Armstrong, aged 45, of Upper Mercer street, who was going to Messrs. Jacob's factory, where he was employed as a night worker, was struck by a bullet in the left thigh. He also was taken to the Adelaide Hospital, and was detained.

Mrs. McGrath, Charlemont street, received a slight wound in the breast, but was able to leave the Adelaide Hospital after receiving treatment.

James Shears, Bride street, was treated in Mercer's Hospital for a wound in the leg, caused, it is believed, by a splinter of the bomb. He left after having had his injury dressed.

FREDERICK STREET ATTACK.

A covered motor car, conveying members of the national Army along North Frederick street towards Dorset street, was attacked at 4.45 o'clock by five men, who were standing on the footpath near Gardiner's row. They discharged nine or ten shots from revolvers at the soldiers, but did not cause any injury. The car did not stop, and turned into Hardwicke street. The fire was not returned by the occupants of the car.

Three of the attackers ran along Gardiner's row towards Temple street, and two along Rutland square towards Parnell street, and all of them escaped.

FIRING IN DUBLIN.

MAN WOUNDED.

Heavy firing was heard in Dublin early this morning, and appeared to be spread over an extensive area of the city. At 12.30 o'clock an outburst broke the stillness of the morning, and troops turned out in Lancia cars and on foot, and patrolled the streets. A considerable amount of sniping was carried on, and it is reported that machine guns were used by the attackers.

It was rumoured during the night that an attack had been planned on national Army posts, and on the Post Office in Amiens street, which irregulars attempted to burn last week. The Post Office was heavily guarded, and the vicinity of Amiens street was included in the sniping zones this morning.

In Buckingham street, which adjoins Amiens street, a man named Christopher Moran, of James's street, North Strand, was wounded by a bullet in the abdomen, and was taken in the Corporation ambulance to Jervis street Hospital. It was learned that his injury was not of a serious nature.

Sentries were posted on the streets, and near O'Connell Bridge three men in civilian clothing, who were halted by the troops, were found to be in possession of revolvers, and were arrested.

ALARM IN THE SUBURBS.

SHOOTING AT BEGGAR'S BUSH.

Residents in Ballsbridge and Sandymount were disturbed in the early hours of yesterday morning by considerable revolver, rifle, and machine-gun fire. Shots fired in the neighbourhood of Beggar's Bush alarmed the garrison, which replied vigorously to what were believed to be snipers operating on the roofs.

People occupying rooms on upper floors overlooking the roadways took refuge in lower rear rooms, as several upper windows were broken by bullets, and the risk from stray shots was considerable. Civilians living in the district, whose work takes them from or to their homes in the early hours, were obliged to keep under cover until it was broad daylight. The shooting continued from 3 o'clock until half-past five.

Mrs. Mary Redmond, living in Great Clarence street, was shot in the foot while lying in bed.

ARRESTS ON AN ISLAND.

RAIDED GOODS RECOVERED.

The following bulletin was issued by the Army Publicity Department at 11 p.m. last night:—

"An island near Lanesborough was visited by a party of troops, and nine irregulars were made prisoners. A quantity of arms and explosives was captured. Considerable quantities of foodstuffs, believed to have been taken from a train derailed the previous evening at Kiltoom, were found on the island."

Our Athlone Correspondent telegraphs:—

National troops returned to Custume Barracks, Athlone, to-day by boat from the Lanesborough direction with nine prisoners, rifles, and a large quantity of ammunition, as well as some provisions, believed to have been taken from a goods train at Kiltoom on Wednesday night.

Pursuing their search for the raiders of the train, a small party of troops, under Captain Garrahan, took over a canal steamboat early yesterday morning. When they reached Inchineena Island, on the north side of Lough Ree, they landed in small boats and surrounded a house which was said to be occupied by irregulars. They took nine men by surprise and arrested them without trouble. They captured also three Mauser rifles, three Service rifles, revolvers, and a large quantity of explosive bullets. They also discovered four beds, the pillows of which were saturated with iodine. Presumably they had been lately used by wounded men.

They seized the following goods:—Seven bags of flour, a chest of tea, consigned to O'Malley, Westport; ten sides of smoked bacon, and a bag of sugar.

When the boat returned to Athlone with the prisoners large crowds assembled at the quayside and congratulated the troops on their success.

COMMOTION IN TUAM.

ARMED MEN TERRIFY THE INHABITANTS.

The people of Tuam were startled on Wednesday night by reports of rifle and revolver firing. At about 11.30 p.m. the town was invaded by several bands of young men, who challenged all pedestrians and cleared the streets. Much shouting and yelling was indulged in, and this was kept up until 3 a.m.

Some men who were going home from a club had an exciting experience. They were "held up" and put into an old ruin. At the same time a bomb was exploded quite close to them in the square. Women and children in the adjoining houses were terrified.

The windows of several houses bear marks of bullets or bomb splinters. Large holes are to be seen in the windows of Messrs. Hosty and Co., general merchants; and the drapery establishment of Mr. D. J. Butler, bears bullet marks. The people are at a loss to know what the object of the visit was, and it is surmised that it was meant to "draw" the soldiers, who are stationed at the workhouse, some distance from the town.

FIRING HEARD IN TIPPERARY.

A telegram from Tipperary yesterday stated that heavy firing had been heard in the direction of Kilfinane, in the hills surrounding which irregulars are reported to have concentrated.

FROM TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

THE BALFOUR NOTE.

PATIENCE NEEDED.

"THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY SAYS:—

It is plainly the duty of responsible writers and public men in Allied countries, and also in the United States, to abstain at this juncture from utterances of a nature to inflame feeling. The present need is for patience and understanding, coupled with sincere endeavour to find an at least partial settlement of the most pressing difficulties. Pending the success of efforts that will assuredly be made, if they are not already being made, to ward off the worst consequences of the British official error, we think it right that the American public should know how little the British people as a whole approve of the policy of the Balfour Note, or of the tactical considerations that may well have prompted its issue.

The nature of the soundest British opinion in regard to the whole question of reparations and war debts, including the British debt to the United States, is entirely uninterested in the minor details of any settlement. It is profoundly interested in the promotion of a just and lasting settlement that shall hasten a return to normal economic, financial, and political relationships between nations. It is not sentimental towards Germany, and it is well disposed towards the rights of France, as it equitably conceives them. It is not inclined to be selfish, ungenerous, or tactical. It is determined that British obligations towards the United States shall be met in such manner as the eminent members of the American Funding Commission may, after discussion with British representatives, think most proper, and it would be glad to feel that the irritating constructions not unnaturally placed upon the Balfour Note could be suspended until events have shown what the British attitude truly is.

THE RUSSIAN CHURCH.

ITS MARTYRDOM.

The Times in a leading article says:—The account of the latest phase of the effort of the Bolshevists to destroy the Russian Church we publish to-day shows the cold and deliberate calculation with which the Bolshevists are attempting to poison the very springs of spiritual life in Russia. All the landscape of Russia is alive with intimate legends of the Saviour and the saints. For the people the Church is the guardian of the idea of Russia, which, in prayer and music, naturally expands into some greater conception of deliverance, so that the suffering on the Cross and the joy of Resurrection become symbols of some infinite resources in the bitter baffling life of man. This is the force against which the Bolshevists are struggling.

They set up a kind of Church Soviet of their own, using for this purpose the kind of subservient ecclesiastics who lend themselves to the purpose of any evil powers that be. And this organised conspiracy for the destruction of the Russian Church by means of a peculiarly virulent form of schism, the Bolshevists, aggressive atheists, for whom all religion is an "opiate for the people," describe as a movement of Church reform. Their aim is to kill the Church by setting up a travesty and mockery of all religion. They will not succeed. The people treat their creatures with contempt. The Russian Church has gained spiritual and intellectual power during the trials of the last few years.

The murder of men who stand firm for their faith in the unseen, and all this latter turmoil of the open corruption of Christian forms by atheists, will only strengthen those deeper forces of the Russian spirit, which will mean the ultimate destruction of Bolshevism.

SPELL-BOUND AUSTRIA.

TO HELP ITSELF.

The Vienna Correspondent of The Times says:—Mr. Lloyd George's blunt declaration at the conclusion of the London Conference, that none of the Allied countries could incur further burdens for Austria's benefit, has acted like a spur on the Austrian Government. During the last few weeks conditions in Austria have been becoming more and more impossible, while Austrians have sat as if hypnotised by the oncoming catastrophe, incapable of doing anything to prevent it.

Now it would seem as if, realising at last that no help can be expected from the Allies, and having very little hope of the efficacy of any action undertaken by the League of Nations, they are determined to do what they can themselves.

KILKENNY IRREGULARS.

ATTACK ON THOMASTOWN.

At about 3 o'clock on Thursday morning the troops stationed at Thomastown were attacked by irregulars, who had taken up a position on a hill overlooking the town.

The three houses occupied by the troops were fired at simultaneously, and the garrison replied vigorously. The attack was continued for nearly a half an hour, when it was beaten off.

Sergeant Smith received a slight flesh wound. It is not known if the attackers had any casualties.

ROBBERS IN A BANK.

Between one and two o'clock on Wednesday morning a party of raiders went to the lodgings of Mr. O'Connell, manager of the National Bank, in Virginia, County Cavan. Mr. O'Connell lodges about a quarter of a mile from the town. The raiders ordered him to produce the keys of the safe, and compelled him to accompany them to the bank. They were armed with rifles, shot guns, and revolvers. The cashier, Mr. Fitzgerald, who sleeps in the bank house, was also called up and ordered to put up his hands. He refused and a shot was fired, which missed Mr. Fitzgerald. Another shot was fired, and he still refused to put up his hands. The raiders then opened the safe, and got some silver and notes. The manager refused to open an interior compartment of the safe, notwithstanding repeated threats.

ROBBERY AT DEAN'S GRANGE.

Six armed men yesterday evening robbed the offices of the Dean's Grange Cemetery and stole several hundred pounds, including the cemetery workers wages. Two of the robbers entered the place between 5 and 6 o'clock, while four others stood outside on guard. They held up the registrar, Mr. Dunne, and staff, and ordered the cash box and safe to be opened. Having taken all the money they could lay hands on, they decamped.

MONEY ORDER SERVICE WITH GERMANY SUSPENDED.

The Postmaster-General announces that the German Post Office has temporarily suspended money order service with the United Kingdom in both directions. The British Post Office, consequently, cannot, until further notice, accept money orders from Germany, Danzig or Memel territory.—(Reuter.)

SCHOOLBOY ALPINIST KILLED.

BERNE, Friday.

A message from Champery states that the search party, which has been for several days scouring the district, has found the body of the English schoolboy, named Abrahams, who has been missing since August 6, in a torrent at the foot of a precipitous rock, below the Croix de Callet.

It is believed that the youth was climbing a grassy slope when he lost his footing, slid over the brink, and fell into the stream. Death was evidently instantaneous.—(Reuter.)

STRIKERS DISMISSED.

ROME, Thursday.

The Railway Executive Committee has decided to dismiss 111 of the railwaymen who were principally responsible for the recent strike, and to penalise a number of other railwaymen who took part in it.—(Reuter.)

IRISH POSTAL SERVICES.

GETTING BACK TO NORMAL.

NORTHERN MAILS RESTORED.

THE TELEGRAPHS AND TELEPHONES.

The delivery of correspondence and parcels is gradually becoming normal. The Post Office is now getting rid of the bulk of the correspondence in hands for the whole of Southern Ireland, except Cork County, south of Buttevant.

The City and County of Cork are being periodically cleared, communication with Dublin being maintained via Cardiff, Liverpool, and Fishguard.

The service for the Limerick, Kerry, and Clare area is limited to one despatch per day, owing to the bridge at Dundrum being broken. Mails are taken down as far as Ballybrophy and thence to Nenagh. The Post Office is also availing itself of a service via Athenry and Ennis, but this has been interfered with through the destruction of the bridge at Ardrahan.

Northward the delivery of mails has been facilitated by the resumption of the through trains from Amiens street. There was a full night mail train last night, and the 6.35 mail train to Belfast was announced to run this morning as usual.

Ardee, Dunleer, and other districts were more or less isolated after the occupation of Dundalk by irregulars on Monday and until Thursday. People as a result showed a great hunger for news, and travellers carrying papers were besieged with requests for a copy of the latest.

Telephonic communication has been restored between Dublin, Limerick, Tipperary, Drogheda, Navan, and Belfast.

There is now telegraphic communication with Dundalk, which was always in touch with Dublin via Belfast. The wires are also working to Limerick, and from Limerick to Listowel. Practically the only places of importance now cut off are Killarney, in the County Kerry, and the whole of County Cork.

WIRELESS AND CABLE SERVICES.

Owing to the partial interruption of the cable service to the United States, a large amount of Press work has been diverted to the Post Office wireless station at Oxford (Leafield). This station has for some time been conducting a limited Press service to Halifax, Nova Scotia, an average of 2,000 words being transmitted each night; but during the past week about 8,000 words a night have been signalled to Halifax. This Press work is carried out without detriment to the normal services from Oxford, which include a commercial service to Cairo and a long-distance service of ordinary telegrams, and news to ships.

In addition, the British official wireless Press messages are transmitted three times daily, the 8 p.m. (Greenwich time) message, according to the Australian Post Office authorities, being picked up regularly at Perth, Western Australia, provided that atmospheric disturbance is not immoderate; whilst in India the signals are good at 8 p.m. and midnight (Greenwich time).

Oxford has recently commenced the transmission of short Press telegrams to India, where the signals are read direct by the wireless station at Karachi, and sent thence to the newspapers in Bombay and Calcutta.

Except in the case of Egypt, the services are at present unilateral, the receiving stations not having sufficient power to send acknowledgments, but the absence of these has not so far proved a very serious drawback.

During the present emergency in trans-Atlantic communications the Imperial cable between Penzance and Halifax, Nova Scotia, exceeded all its previous traffic records.

BEVAN CHARGED WITH FRAUD.

REMANDED FOR A WEEK.

The well-known financier and ex-chairman of the City Equitable Fire Insurance Company, Gerald Lee Bevan—who was arrested in Vienna—arrived in London on Thursday, and appeared at the Guildhall Police Court yesterday morning.

Bevan had been lodged overnight at Moor lane Police Station, and was conveyed to the Guildhall in a taxi-cab. As the car drove up, the crowd which had gathered made a rush to get a glimpse of the notorious financier, but it was kept back by the two iron gates guarding the entrance to the court, which were immediately closed, and the detectives led Bevan through the front entrance into the courtroom.

He was not handcuffed, and walked with a jaunty air in front of the detectives. He smiled good-humouredly when he realised that, instead of walking down the steps leading to the cells below the dock, he was proceeding towards the clerk's sanctum.

The prosecution was conducted by Mr. Vincent Evans, Treasury Solicitor, and Bevan was represented by Mr. E. B. Knight, solicitor.

Mr. Evans said that he would call formal evidence of arrest, and then ask for a formal remand until Friday next. He would then request a further remand until September 1st.

Detective Inspector Smith then went into the witness box. He deposed to seeing the defendant at Vienna. He told Bevan that he and another man were City of London police officers, and that Bevan would be escorted to Hamburg and then taken to London, where he would be charged. Bevan replied, "All right."

Inspector Smith, continuing his evidence, said that he read to defendant the seven warrants. Bevan replied:—

"I am very glad you have included the year 1920, as I only came back two days before it was issued. The real trouble is—of the three other members of the Finance Committee, one of them, Mr. Barclay, is dead. He was the oldest and best friend I had in the world."

Inspector Smith related how, owing to the train being late at Hamburg, they had to get on board the Caronia at Cuxhaven. On the arrival in London of Bevan he was conveyed to Moor lane Police Station, and, in reply to the charge, said: "I prefer to say nothing about it."

Cross-examined by Mr. Knight, witness said that he was in Vienna in June shortly after Bevan was arrested. The prisoner expressed his willingness to return with Inspector Smith without proceedings in Vienna, and he signed a document to that effect.

Mr. Knight read the document, in which defendant said:—

"I desire to waive all extradition formalities and return to England with Inspector Smith. I desire to meet all charges which may be preferred against me as soon as possible in the English courts, as if I had been in England, and am prepared to surrender at once to Inspector Smith and proceed to England for that purpose."

Inspector Smith said that the Austrian authorities refused to allow Bevan to be handed over without the formal proceedings being gone into.

After this evidence, Bevan was remanded until Friday of next week.

The Press Association understands on good authority that six or seven charges are to be preferred against Bevan.

POLICING THE COUNTRY.

WEXFORD AND THE CIVIC GUARD

The following communication has been received by Mr. W. A. Browne, Town Clerk, Wexford, from the Ministry for Home Affairs:—

"With reference to your letter of the 10th inst., in regard to the disturbed state of the Town of Wexford, the matter has been discussed with the Commissioner of the Civic Guard. The stationing of an effective force at such an important centre as Wexford is, of course, included in the Commissioner's plans for policing the country, but there are some difficulties in the way of the Civic Guard functioning over any wide area at the present moment. It is hoped, however, that their duties may be extended to Wexford shortly, and a month from now is mentioned to give a rough idea of the time within which this may be accomplished."

SOLDIERS AMBUSHED.

Sergeant Feeney, of Ballymahon, and Volunteer Fitzpatrick, while returning from Swinford to Ballina yesterday evening, were ambushed about two miles from Ballina. The motor car in which they were travelling was hit in many places, and the wind screen was smashed. They stopped the car, and pluckily replied to the attackers until their ammunition was exhausted. They succeeded in getting to Ballina

IRISH MESSAGE OF THANKS.

The following message has been received by Mr. Lloyd George, from the Acting Chairman of the Irish Government, Mr. W. T. Cosgrave:

"Government Buildings, Dublin.

"To the Right Hon. D. Lloyd George, Criccieth.

"Your very kind expression of sympathy with the Irish people and their Government, on whose behalf I send this acknowledgment, is deeply appreciated in this hour of grief for our lamented President, Arthur Griffith. Please accept our very sincere thanks."

A similar message has been received by Mr. Winston Churchill.

In memory of the late Mr. Arthur Griffith, at the request of Ard Craobh of Sinn Fein, of which he was the founder and President, two Requiem Masses were celebrated yesterday at the Franciscan Church, Merchants' quay, Dublin. The Masses were celebrated by Rev. Leo Sheehan, O.F.M., and Rev. Peter Sheehan, O.F.M., brothers of Mrs. Griffith. The large congregation included Mrs Griffith (widow), Master Nevin Griffith (son), Mr. Frank Griffith (brother), Miss Frances Griffith (sister), Mr. and Mrs. Malone (brother-in-law and sister of Mrs. Griffith), and Mrs. Fallon.

The Executive of the Ard Craobh was represented by Miss Rigney and Mr. Lynam (Secretaries), Mr. Eamonn Sheerin (Acting Chairman), Miss Hoey, Miss Dallaghan, Milo McGarry, Messrs. Hickey, Thomas Collins, and P. Morgan.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Dublin Typographical Provident Society, Mr. C. Timmins proposed the following resolution:—

"That we, the Executive Committee of the Dublin Typographical Provident Society, on behalf of our members, beg to place on record our keen regret at the lamented death of President Arthur Griffith—for many years an honoured member of our Society—whose untimely death not only is a serious blow to his family, but an irreparable loss to Ireland; and that we respectfully tender to his widow and children our heartfelt sympathy in their great sorrow."

The resolution was seconded by Mr. W. Scott, and supported by Messrs. E. Monks, senr., trustee; Paxton, Brophy, Kerr, Richards, W. J. Whelan, secretary, and Sean P. Campbell, treasurer.

All business was suspended in Waterford yesterday morning from half-past ten o'clock until noon, during the celebration of Requiem Office and High Mass for the repose of the soul of the late Mr. Arthur Griffith.

The Most Rev. Dr. Hackett presided at the Mass, at which there was a large attendance of clergy and the general public. The Mayor, the members of the Corporation, and officials were present.

Mr. Denis McCullough, a member of the Belfast City Council, attended in his official capacity the funeral of Mr. Arthur Griffith.

DUBLIN HORSE SHOW.

THE CONCLUDING DAY.

MARATHON FOR CAR-DRIVERS.

There was a fair attendance yesterday at Ballsbridge for the concluding day's proceedings of the Dublin Horse Show. With the exception of a shower in the forenoon, the day kept up well, although the threatening aspect of the afternoon may have militated in some degree against the attendance of the fair sex.

A somewhat exaggerated report gained currency as to an attack by armed men upon the Show grounds in the small hours of Thursday morning, and it was pointed out that, although there are thousands of windows throughout the buildings in the spacious grounds, not a single pane of glass had been broken as a result of the firing. It was stated yesterday that there had been some revolver firing outside the grounds during the night, but that no attack was made upon the Show premises, and there was no reply to the shots from the guard on duty at Ballsbridge.

The closing day's proceedings were on lines somewhat similar to the Fridays of previous years, features possessing an element of novelty being introduced. The chief novel item was a Hackney Car Marathon, which aroused considerable popular interest, the starters numbering a dozen Dublin car drivers, who made a very creditable turn-out. The principal conditions of the Marathon were that each horse entered should be the bona fide property of a licensed car driver in the Dublin Metropolitan Police area, and regularly driven on the hazard, and should be driven by a licensed driver in a well-turned-out car, over a route of eight miles. The cars assembled in the jumping enclosure, and were inspected by the judges before the start, a representative of the Society travelling as a passenger on each vehicle. A two-minutes interval was allowed between each car, with an hour to complete the course, the Marathon being in no sense regarded as a race, but rather as a general test of merit and smartness.

The members of the Show Committee were keenly interested in the event, and should it commend itself to popular favour, it may become a permanent feature in the annual programme. The question of similar tests among the general harness classes may also be a future development of this experiment.

A second experiment in which the Committee are keenly interested is the inter-hunt jumping competition, another of this year's novelties, which introduced a pleasing variety in the jumping enclosure.

A FINANCIAL SUCCESS.

The principal object of the Director and the Show Committee this year was not a financial one, but rather to provide a much-needed object-lesson for the Irish people, and to maintain unimpaired our premier national industry. It is all the more satisfactory in such circumstances to learn that, judged from the financial aspect solely, the Horse Show has this year been an unqualified success. Despite the handicap of the curtailed programme on Wednesday, consequent upon the funeral of Mr. Arthur Griffith, the attendance on Thursday largely contributed to the week's success.

Another innovation in yesterday's programme was a sale of made hunters in the Veterinary Paddock, at which animals of value changed hands at prices that were deemed satisfactory.

The Art Exhibition proved such a pronounced success during the week that the Committee have decided to continue the section for a few days longer. To-day will be a "popular day" for the Exhibition of Irish Art at a nominal admission charge. One exhibit in the collection which attracted widespread interest was a vestment, exhibited by the Dun Emer Guild. The vestment is unique, inasmuch as it is worked in cloth of gold—the first cloth of gold ever woven in this country. The weaving has been carried out by Messrs. Atkinson, of Dublin, the well-known Irish poplin manufacturers, and they have succeeded in embodying in the material a special gold sheen, which adds immensely to the richness of the effect. The trumpet pattern embroidery is finely conceived, and to many is the best part of the design, and is enhanced by beaded embroidered panels of Irish saints, in rich colouring, the subsidiary decoration throughout being linked up with Celtic interlacements. The vestment is pronounced to be an excellent piece of ecclesiastical embroidery.

Three demonstrations were given by the Irish countryside workers yesterday, and attracted a large attendance. In the jumping enclosure there was a full programme, which included the judging of made polo ponies, judging and parade of trotting horses, and jumping for consolation prizes.

The route was about eight miles over the adjoining district, and commenced and finished at the Show Yard:—1st prize, John Murphy, Albert place, West, Dublin—Flying Machine, bay gelding, 5 years; 2nd, Wm. Byrne, Swan villa, Rathmines—Sheela, bay mare, 7 years; 3rd, Thomas Walton, 22b Leeson Park—Shinner, chestnut gelding, 8 years; 4th, Peter Murphy, 1 Grantham place, Dublin—Rob Roy, chestnut gelding, 8 years; 5th, Michael Dunne, Queen's square—Fanny, bay mare, 7 years; res., Michael Daniel, Lower Fitzwilliam street—Billie. The cars left the Show grounds by Gate F. and proceeded along Anglesea road, Beaver row, towards Roebuck, Goatstown, then into Dundrum and Churchtown, over Classon's Bridge, through Milltown, and thence home via Eglinton road, re-entering the Show ground at Simmonscourt road gate. The conditions of the competition prohibited racing, obstruction, or nursing, the judging being on the condition of the horses and cars on arrival.

The Royal Dublin Society much appreciate the arrangements made by the Civic Guard and the Dublin Metropolitan Police to ensure that the competition should be carried out without a hitch. The Dublin Metropolitan Police were on duty within the city limits of the route, and in the county area the Civic Guard, for the first time in their new uniform, did duty. Everything was done to ensure a clear course, and the competitors performed their allotted task within the appointed fifty minutes.

THE JUMPING.

There was a splendid attendance in the enclosure, and the jumping was much better than usual for a concluding day. There were 17 starters of the 22 entries for the Consolation Competition, and after the first round ten were left in. In the third round Whitegate gave a grand display, and Sunspots, except for a slight rap at the hurdle, was very good. Pongo made no mistake, and Flip Flap was good, but Crinken Lad and J'y suis J'y reste were faulty at the hurdle. Four were sent round again. Whitegate, going too fast, made a mistake at the wall, and Sunspots took a few stones away at the same obstacle. Pongo touched the hurdle, and Flip Flap hit it hard. The judges then placed Sunspots first, Whitegate second, Pongo third, and Flip Flap fourth. Details:—

IRISH ART EXHIBITION.

The success which has attended the exhibition of Irish art during the Horse Show has induced the Committee to continue it for a day more. The exhibition will, therefore, be open to-day in the Exhibition Hall at Ballsbridge from 12 noon till 7 o'clock. Those who have not been able to visit the Horse Show will, therefore, have an opportunity of seeing this unique and very interesting display of Irish art. The exhibition was originally organised as part of the Aonach Tailteann, and when the Games were postponed the Committee arranged with the Royal Dublin Society to hold it during the Horse Show week.

SEWELL'S HUNTER SALE.

A welcome innovation was introduced yesterday when in the Veterinary Paddock a sale of hunters was held by Messrs. Sewell. Heretofore, the Show have Bloodstock Sales in connection with the Show have been confined to the Sale Paddocks across the road, and it was the general impression yesterday that it was a happy idea to hold this dispersal of hunters within the Show grounds proper. The auctioneer was Mr. Lewis, who has conducted Messrs. Sewell's Horse Show sales for now more than twenty years, and so expeditiously were the proceedings conducted that the catalogue of one hundred odd lots was disposed of in less than two hours. There was a good attendance, but once again the absence of foreign buyers, due in large measure to the rate of exchange, was reflected in the volume of business transacted. Still, there was a good demand for made hunters and horses of quality, and these sold really well, in some cases realising much more than owners, perhaps, expected. Several of lots catalogued did not put in an appearance, a circumstance due, no doubt, to difficulties incidental to transit. The sales will be concluded this morning in the Repository, Lower Mount street, when another attractive catalogue will be taken in hands at 10.30. Appended is a list of the principal prices realised yesterday:—

MILITARY POST ATTACKED.

A GALLANT DEFENCE.

A graphic description of the attack by irregulars, numbering from 100 to 120, upon 14 national troops at Ferrycarrig, Wexford, on Wednesday of last week was given at the resumed inquest in the County Infirmary, Wexford, on Private Edward McEvoy, who was killed.

Mr. C. Power, who (instructed by Mr. J. F. Crotty, solicitor) appeared for the military authorities, in opening the proceedings, said—The beginning of this story dates as far back as July 7th, when 150 men arrived in the neighbourhood, dug a trench on Ferrycarrig Bridge, and opened the span. Iron railings were torn up and thrown into the river. These persons commandeered paraffin oil from Mr. McDonald and attempted to burn the bridge. The paraffin had not that effect. They then got petrol and endeavoured to burn the wooden portion of the bridge. That attempt also failed. In these circumstances, and in view of the destruction of Wexford Bridge and the bridge higher up the river, and as Ferrycarrig Bridge was the only means of communication between Wexford and Dublin and the North, it was essential that that bridge should be protected, and accordingly a post was set up by the military in Mr. McDonald's house, which completely controlled and covered the bridge.

Mr. McDonald's house was the only habitable building covering the bridge. Upon Wednesday, August 9th, the inhabitants of Mr. McDonald's house comprised fourteen men of the army, Mr. McDonald, his housekeeper, and her daughter, aged 14 years. At about 5 a.m. fire was opened upon the house. To show that this was not an afterthought, but that it had been carefully planned, a feint attack was made upon the Wexford barracks at the same time, so as to prevent any assistance going towards the small post at Ferrycarrig. After fighting for about half an hour, Private McEvoy was hit, and before dying said, "Fight on, boys; don't surrender." He then died. The sergeant in command was wounded, and his place was taken by Sergeant John Byrne. He was repeatedly called on to surrender, but gallantly insisted on holding the attackers, although his post was reduced to four men as against 120. Ultimately, out of regard for the women in the house, who had been under fire for something like three hours, and, in fact, half hysterical, Sergeant Byrne surrendered, and to the credit of the irregulars it should be said that he was congratulated by their leader on the excellent fight which he had made.

THE EVIDENCE.

Sergeant John Byrne said that he was awakened by the firing of shots before 5 a.m. He got out of bed and took up a position with a Lewis gun which covered the bridge. The firing started with a couple of shots at the sentry, who replied. After about half an hour's firing Private McEvoy, who was at a front window, cried out, "I am hit, boys." He then fell in the direction of the witness, who could not attend to him, having to remain at his post. Sergeant Darley was then wounded, and the witness took over the command. After an hour's fighting one of the attackers called out from the bridge to the garrison to surrender, stating they would fire or bomb them out of the house if they did not. At that time there were in the room with witness Private M'Ardle, the deceased man, and Sergeant Darley. The witness and Private M'Ardle declined to surrender, and fired in the direction from which the call came.

Bombs were then thrown into the house, different patterns being used. About twenty minutes later on the orders of Sergeant Darley and in view of the terrorised state of the women the troops surrendered. The leader of the attackers taking the surrender said—"You put up a good fight." He then told the witness to bring down the men, arms, and ammunition. The witness ordered the men down, and in the meantime dismantled the Lewis gun and concealed two rifles in a coal cellar. The attackers did not attempt to make them prisoners, but remarked that they had no place to take them. A small relief party proceeded by foot for Wexford, and attended to the five wounded men. The witness estimated from the flashes of the firing that the attackers numbered from 150 to 200.

Mr. J. J. M'Donald, owner of the premises in which the troops were stationed, stated that about 30 bullets entered his bedroom on the morning of the attack. A bomb came through a back window, and exploding, penetrated the floor and damaged the shop. He subsequently found Private M'Evoy lying in a pool of blood. After the surrender he found four unexploded bombs, which had the pins removed from them. He and one of the soldiers threw them into the river.

Lieutenant O'Leary, who was O.C. on the occasion, stated that in consequence of a report that an attempt had been made to burn the bridge he inspected the place, and placed a guard in Mr. M'Donald's premises. On the morning of the attack fire was opened upon Wexford Barracks. Localising the direction from which it came he left the barracks with ten men, sending a party of a similar number in another direction. When they were getting at the rear of their position the attackers got away by a laneway proceeding in the direction of Ferrycarrig. It was not until about 7.15 that he heard the firing at Ferrycarrig, and he immediately despatched his second party to the scene.

COUNSEL AND MURDER.

The Coroner (Mr. J. J. Roche) pointed out that the question for them to decide was, whether the deceased man was wilfully shot or not. He did not think that if Mr. McDonald had been shot on the occasion, it could be described as murder.

Mr. McDonald—Question? They knew I was there, and they fired thousands of shots.

Mr. Power—If they shot Mr. McDonald they would have been guilty of murder.

Coroner—In murder, as a rule, the man who is going to murder knows who he is going to kill. In this case, they did not see who they were going to kill.

Mr. Power said that he had the unpleasant duty of defending two men, who were afterwards executed in Mountjoy, in connection with the Mount street affray in Dublin, and one of the men who never was in the house was convicted on the strict law that he went out with the same intent as the others. The attackers were engaged on the illegal act of attempting to disable the Government of the country, and if, in that attempt, life was lost, they were guilty of murder.

Mr. Hamilton (juror)—But no attack was made on the bridge.

Mr. Power—No; because three men kept up the fight. If the national troops are to be made cock-shots of, and the people who do so get off scot free, then the people must only take the blame themselves for the consequences.

Mr. Hamilton (juror)—Is the country in a state of war?

Mr. Power—That is not for me to say.

Mr. Hamilton—If the country is in a state of war, we would know where we are. If not, why are armed military sent out?

Mr. Power replied that there were no police in Wexford. The military during the transition period were functioning as police. They were not at Ferrycarrig for offensive purposes, but for the object of defence.

The jury returned the following verdict:—"We find that Private E. McEvoy came by his death at Ferrycarrig, on August 9th, from shock and hemorrhage, the result of a bullet wound through the thigh, said bullet having been fired by some person or persons unknown. We find he was in discharge of his duty at the time."

A rider was added, expressing sympathy with the relatives of Private McEvoy.

To-day the Earl of Gosford is eighty-one. He succeeded his father, the third Earl, in 1864, and sits in the House of Lords as Baron Worlingham. He has held various appointments at Court, including that of Lord of the Bedchamber to the late King Edward when Prince of Wales, and he is Vice-Chamberlain of the Household to Queen Alexandra. He married Lady Louisa Montague, daughter of the seventh Duke of Manchester, and their elder son, the heir to the Earldom, bears the courtesy title of Viscount Acheson, and married in 1919 Miss Mildred Ridgely Carter. The family seat is Gosford Castle, Co. Armagh, but Lord and Lady Gosford reside chiefly in London.

SOCIAL JOTTINGS AT PHŒNIX PARK RACES.

(BY OUR LADY CORRESPONDENT.)

It was unfortunate that the finals in various competitions came off at Ballsbridge yesterday, as thereby many people interested were detained during the afternoon, and thus lost a grand day's sport on the Ashtown course. The weather held up well, though the mountains were capped by heavy, misty clouds, which were momentarily expected to dissolve into showers, which, happily, did not come off. The grounds, refreshed by recent rain, were looking lovely, and the rock garden, as well as the brilliant groups of flowers at the foot of the stands in the enclosure, came in for much admiration. Amongst those present in the Club grounds were:—Frances Marchioness Conyngham, the Earl of Kenmare, Viscountess Powerscourt and the Hon. Doreen Wingfield, Lady Arnott, who, with her sons, Captain Arnott and Mr. T. Arnott, received a number of friends on their private stand; General Sir Bryan Mahon, Sir Michael and Lady O'Loghlen, Sir Timothy and the Misses O'Brien, Mrs. and the Misses Gaisford St. Lawrence, and Sir George and Miss Brooke, Captain and Mrs. Brooke, Hon. Mrs. Preston, Miss Kenny, General and Mrs. Smith-Bingham, Colonel and Mrs. Croft, Mr. and Mrs. Laidlaw and party, Colonel and Mrs. Brut, Colonel and Mrs. Charteris, Major J. Barry, Mrs. and Miss M'Neile, Colonel Edgeworth Johnstone, Colonel and Miss Challoner Knox, Captain Boyd-Rochford, V.C., and Mrs. Boyd-Rochford, Mrs. Shawe Taylor, Mr. Maxwell Arnott, Mr. and Mrs. W. THE EMPIRE THEATRE.

This week visitors to the Empire enjoy a very excellent programme. Les Grandes Revuette Cie present music, song, and dance in abundance. Maraso and Socoloba, harpist and classical dancer, are a talented couple, whose contributions evoke warm applause. The Poluski Brothers are comedians of a high order, and in their act, "Humouring a Lunatic," they are most amusing. Halma's juggling tricks are excellent. In addition there are a number of other items of high merit.

STOCKS CLOSED IRREGULAR.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)
NEW YORK, Friday.

Stocks opened strong. The creation of many new high levels for the year diffused a more cheerful sentiment, and the feeling was more hopeful that the outcome of the Labour negotiations would be satisfactory, and the basis laid for the revival of industry. In the late dealings, however, bear selling of Mexican Oils and other specialities caused recessions, and the closing was irregular.

WHEAT opened easy at ⅛c. to ⅛c. fall, and declined throughout owing to a poor export demand, bearish Liverpool cables, a bearish private Canadian crop report, the lower cash and corn markets, and a bearish "Modern Miller" review. THOUGHTS AND THEORIES.

The Iconoclast—Dublin's Statues—Pine Apples and Pelicans.

(BY C. H. B.)

THE iconoclast is always entertaining, whether it is images or shibboleths that he burns to overturn. That does not mean that he is desirable per se, and, indeed, society usually polishes him off before he can do any real harm. Nevertheless, he is amusing while he lasts, and provides employment for the stonemasons and the mumbo jumbo manufacturers, and the sacrosanctifiers of little tin gods. He is essentially a charter member of that great and hyper-active class of persons who are all against allowing Nature to take its course. "The 'eathen in is blindness," sings Rudyard Kipling, "bows down to wood and stone. 'E never 'as no orders unless they is 'is own. 'E keeps 'is side arms dreadful, and leaves them all about; And then comes up the regiment and turns the 'eathen out." Here we have tersely and accurately described the process of Nature in regard to images of wood and stone and the heathen who worships them. The regiment is civilisation. Your iconoclast, however, cannot wait for civilisation to arrive. He is all for getting a crowbar and an axe and cutting down the perfectly good and sufficient idols while they are still amply sufficient for the heathen's simple spiritual needs, and much more suitable for the purpose than anything that the iconoclast could supply in their place. The result is always the same. The iconoclast gets up against the medicine men—the Guardians of the Images, and after a spirited, but hopeless, struggle passes insensibly into the tribal stew.

This little train of thought would never have been started if I had not read somewhere in the paper that a member of the Dublin Corporation will move at a forthcoming meeting of the Council that all the statues in Sackville street except that of Daniel O'Connell be removed. Now we have here the perfect iconoclast, the man who will not let Nature take its course. It is not a divine fury of patriotism that inspires him, for in that case he would surely spare the bronze gentleman at the far end of the street, who is engaged in telling the Fire Brigade, "Thus far shalt thou go, and no farther." He would have also spared the Rev. Mathew, the Father of Irish temperance, whose warning finger, however it may detract from the æsthetic proportions of Sackville street, must have prevented many a thoughtless reveller emerging from the Gresham Hotel from passing across to Messrs. Gilbey and Co., and getting quoted for bulk consignments. No, it is the genuine furor æstheticus that consumes our civic reformer. He believes that Sackville street will never be the finest street in Europe as long as the blinking images, including the majestic Pillar, from the apex of which Horatio watches the lean hulls of Guinness's thirst destroyers nosing out to sea, are permanently removed. And the man is right. Any municipal architect can tell him that. What he does not realise is that in due course Civilisation will come along—the regiment—and 'oof the statues out.

Wood and Stone.

I must not be understood as pressing the analogy to its logical conclusion. I would be loth to suggest that the Irishman in his blindness bows down to wood and stone, or that he never takes no orders unless they are his own. Wood and stone—totemism and ancestor worship—are the crudest manifestations of the heathen, who, if not exterminated by trade rum and devitalised by top hats, continues to be a heathen long after his wooden images have become shibboleths and his stone altars political principles, and Civilisation—the regiment—is eternally hoofing him out. The heathen, in a word, is the man or the nation that never quite catches up with civilisation, and the more civilised civilisation becomes the more frequently and fiercely it hoofs the heathen out. The Irishman in his blindness does not bow down to wood and stone, but he bows down to his ancestors, which is every bit as bad, because he knows nothing about them, and to history, which is worse, because it is almost exclusively the creation of the medicine men, the high priests of Mumbo Jumbo.

Dublin has many statues, some worse than others, but all bad in the eyes of civilisation and of the iconoclast, who is simply trying to do civilisation's work before the time is ripe. The objection to a statue is that it is the image of a dead god, and not of a living one. The dead god being there, hewn in perennial bronze, and, as likely as not, in a pair of very badly cut trousers, one has to maintain a sort of bowing respect for him, though the fervour of true worship has passed out of our bones. "Good old Tom Moore!" they exclaim, as they conduct the unsuspecting stranger through College Green; "they don't breed poets like that nowadays!" And they try and make it clear to the stranger, and have no difficulty whatever in satisfying themselves, that Ireland—meaning the Ireland of Tom Moore—still lives and remains as integral a part of Irish life as the Horse Show and the hall porter of the Imperial Hotel, Cork, who is, possibly, the only romantic poet in Ireland to-day who will not ultimately have a statue raised to him. Tom Moore lies buried in Devizes churchyard or some other alien spot, and the men who thus earnestly absorb inspiration from his effigy could not read twenty-five lines of "Lallah Rookh" without being bored to tears. But they conscientiously include the name of Tom Moore and the names of all the other originals of their statues in their demonology, not exactly bowing down to them, but unwilling to evict them from their niches, and they are quite astonished when the regiment of civilisation comes along, and, remarking that they keep their dustbins awful and leave them all about, proceed to treat them as they treated the elder heathen whose totems and rabbit's feet were not a fraction more heathenish, considering the times in which they lived.

Two-Seater Horses.

Nothing, I am sure, will surprise the good citizens of Dublin more than to be told that quite unconsciously their statues are moulding their ideas, or, rather, that they are preventing their ideas from developing on progressive lines; but I am sure it is so. I admit I have never seen it, but I am quite sure that when a "die-hard" Tory passes the statue of William III. he says to himself, "They don't breed kings like that nowadays." Or he may just say, "They can't breed horses like that nowadays," and very likely they can't, though a friend of mine who has been to the Horse Show tells me that it looks as if those two-seater horses with the long wheelbase might be coming in again. There is a statue round the corner from Westmoreland street, and contagious to the Brunswick street Police Station, which illustrates my point to perfection. It shows an eminent medical man—I forget his name—sitting on a pineapple and stroking the head of his favourite pelican. It must be a hundred years since he passed away, but, as the result of feeling that it has to live up to that statue, the entire medical profession in Dublin continues to exist in an atmosphere of pine apples and pelicans.

Now all this might seem to prove that our iconoclast is on the right tack in advocating the abolition of the Sackville street immortals, or, at least, their removal to some other place where they can dream in stone without interrupting the traffic or spoiling the vista. It does nothing of the kind. It would be perfectly useless to remove the statues at the point of the iconoclast's hammer because Dublin would simply put up others in their place. Time enough, they will say, to destatue Sackville street when it presents a vista worthy of remark, and a volume of traffic bearing ear-marks of immediate congestion. This will, of course, be a mere subterfuge, because, really, they would not part with Sir John Grey and chubby Dan O'Connell and Charles Stuart Parnell if you offered to pave Sackville street with gold bricks. But they are all for letting Nature take its course. Even the heathen in his blindness was reconciled to the arrival of the regiment after the top hats and trade gin had been handed around. So it is more than likely that the Dublin Corporation will decide to leave the removal of Sackville street's gallery of great immoveables to the irresistible forces that periodically prepare fresh portions of that majestic thoroughfare for new cloud-capped towers and more gorgeous picture palaces.

Ye banks and braes o' bonnie Ayr,
  Where Bobbie Burns invoked the lyre
And Bruce (they say—I was not there)
  Pursued the Saxon round the shire,
The clansman's sword has called a truce,
The lyre, it seems, is still in use.

The Hielan' trout run fat and brown
  And sonsie is the Hielan' brew,
And Saxon sportsmen up from Town
  Are often known to mix the two
Till every fish they fail to hook
Becomes a monarch of the brook.

But where's the Saxon walking earth
  That can with Lowlanders compare
At hooking fish of monstrous girth,
  And least of all with men from Ayr?
Pitted against that hardy race
The Southron's in the ha'penny place.

Yea, though Glenlivet flows in spate
  Down Ben Buchanan's craggy pass,
And fish indubitably great
  Grow bigger still with every glass,
The land of Wallace, Bruce, and Burns'
Will ne'er be beat by Saxon kerns.

AFTER FIFTY YEARS.

Are Lever's Novels Popular?

IT is now fifty years since Charles Lever died, but there are not a few among us to-day who remember the genial novelist well. Since his death fashions in literature, like fashions in clothes, have come and gone with amazing rapidity. The three-volume novel of his day has given place to the short story and the single volume of our own. The change, whether for better or worse, has been brought about through the reading public, who, in the hurry and pressure of everyday life, find no time or inclination to peruse literature, whether fiction, biography, or history, of a heavy type. Literature must now be served up in tabloid form. Have, it may be asked, Lever's novels suffered by the change? Probably. In his own day no novelist of the time was more popular with the reading public; and, during his lifetime, as after his death, edition after edition of his works was called for by the reading multitude.

A reaction, after such a tide of full popularity, was sure to follow; and Lever, like other popular authors, had thus his "lean season" for a while. In later years, however, he has crept back to popular favour. An enterprising American publisher, recognising this, is, according to an advertisement in one of the Hearst newspapers, bringing out a complete edition of his works at popular prices. Lever, although not of Irish extraction, was in sympathy and sentiment an Irishman; for who could write the novels he wrote, but an Irishman well acquainted with the idiosyncrasies of his countrymen?

Ireland, in Lever's time—and this must be remembered by the youthful readers of to-day when essaying to criticise justly Lever's works—was a land of drollery, humour, hospitality and gaiety; and, Bohemian as he was himself by nature, if not by inclination, he could, on this account, the more readily grasp comic situations which appear to many in our day, who are out for fault-finding and carping criticism, as gross improbabilities and impossibilities, such as the "Frank Webber" incident.

True, our country at the time was what may be popularly called a land of strange contrasts, with a picturesqueness all its own. Could our author then be blamed if, to add a little more local colouring, he took the liberty to heighten the picturesqueness, and to colour more deeply the loveableness of many of the characters he drew? Lever's Irishmen took to the Army, which was then popular in the country, while his fine English gentlemen were ordered to "foreign service" in Ireland: hence his novels, "Charles O'Malley," "Harry Lorrequer," "Jack Hinton," etc., which have been read in the last generation with thrills of delight and laughter.

Readers have read them in youth, have returned to them in age, and found in their pages the same enjoyment, the same ecstasy; and blessed the memory of the author, who could, with moving laughter, bring them back to the scenes of their youth, to that memorable, now almost forgotten, time of violent love-making, duelling, droll humour, high courtesy, and unbounded hospitality.

TRAVELS ABROAD.

All through his literary career the buoyant exuberance of his spirits never forsook him; for no man ever wrote—and this is no small praise—with animation more sustained. Even his body, like his imagination, was, as it were, continually on the wing; he could not exist without movement and agitation. Fix him to the spot, forbid excitement, and he would have passed away like that Dutch Governor (mentioned in Washington Irving), so that, when he died, there was nothing of him left to bury.

Moving about the Continent in true Bohemian fashion, with keen powers of observation, he collected all that was needful and helpful to put his "properties" more effectively on the stage. It was during this cosmopolitan period of his life that he wrote the "Dodd Family," "The Daltons," and "Davenport Adams," the Irish characters in which he has sent wandering all over the Continent, and in whose delineation he is accused by the critical fault-finders of hazarding extraordinary liberties with improbabilities. With many, however, what appeared so natural, excited little wonder; while the lightness of the touch carried off the little extravagance. The sensations were so briskly served up that they were swallowed by the reader without cavil or comment.

For forty years Lever had been producing book upon book, and I venture to say that the early liking of many readers for him and his books, notwithstanding the fashion of literary caprice and criticism in our day to decry and disparage him, has not been dulled, nor has their acquaintance with him been materially lessened as the years pass on. The reason is not far to seek. He gripped the reading public at the start of his literary career, and held them, as it were, spellbound to the last. Sensation, more or less pronounced, flavoured everything he wrote, but the sensation in his later works differed as widely from the wild and what may be termed the improbable and extravagant action of his earlier novels as an old diplomatist of his differed from one of his earlier, dashing, light dragoons. No taste was disappointed in his books, and, consequently, the good humoured man of the world was the favourite of many of his admiring countrymen.

Of the other works of our author, of which I have left myself no space to write, it may be assumed that many of them will go the common way; but there are not a few of the voluminous library of fiction he has produced which will continue to be read with unfailing delight for years to come. Of these I cannot refrain from mentioning his novel, "The Knight of Gwynne." The hero of the tale is one of the finest ever drawn of the old Irish gentleman—then the first gentleman in Europe; and his nobility of character and fortitude, amid all his misfortunes, as sketched by the author, compels our admiration while they arrest our pitying sympathy.

To those who knew Lever well, his fund of humour and his geniality were the most conspicuous of his personal characteristics. His great stock of youthful vitality and his versatility, after standing the drain of a lifetime, still kept fresh the accumulating experiences of age; while his inexhaustible fund of humour and the sweetness of his disposition make him always welcomed in the most select society in the Irish capital.

He was sixty-three years of age when he died, but his vitality, although in later years in indifferent health, seemed so unimpaired that those who knew him best were no less startled than saddened when they heard that one of their most delightful companions, in whom the grosser things of our nature found no place, was silently, as if by angel's whisper, called away from among them.

JOHN P. GUNNING.

TWO HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

Dublin in the 18th Century—The City's Growth—Drapier's Letters.

(BY N. D. F.)

Nothing is more idle, and, what is less to be forgiven in a writer, more tedious, than minute and lengthened descriptions of localities; where it is very doubtful whether the writers themselves had formed any tolerable notion of the place they describe, it is certain their readers never can!—("Curiosities of Literature," D'Israeli.)

THE great majority of the residents of Dublin are aware of the fact that Dublin City of this 20th century presents an appearance differing considerably from that which obtained during the early part of the 18th century, when most of the modern public buildings and Georgian residential houses had not emerged into the light of day; yet how many attempt to visualise what a general view of the city in the earlier period would have revealed?

Two hundred years ago the city proper lay in and around High street and Christ Church, but the tendency of the metropolis to expand to the east and south had fully set in. Hoggen Green had just recently become College Green; the present west front of Trinity College did not exist—in fact, up to a few years earlier the actual entrance to the College had been on the side bounded by College street; a narrow way leading to the river bank represented the present-day Westmoreland street, and the site of the Bank of Ireland buildings was occupied by a palatial mansion known as Chichester House and Gardens, erected during the reign of James I., and leased in 1661 to Charles II. "for the use of both Houses of Parliament." This mansion was bounded on the west by Turnstyle Alley, in which was situated a brew house, the owner of this having the privilege of using the "Parliament Yard" in connection with his business of brewer. The opposite side of the Green was taken up by ordinary houses, including the "King's Head Inn," and "the house of Patrick Smith, housepainter, next to the corner lott on the road leading to the Round Church": this road corresponds to the present Church lane. The fact that the equestrian statue of King William was erected on the Green (1701) will serve to show that the place had even then become of some importance.

The ground on the north side of the College was known as Lazor's Hill (from an old leper hospital in the neighbourhood), and included, in addition to some of the present-day streets, Hawkins quay and Mercer's Dock. Previously high tides had frequently reached as far as the College, but to prevent future inundations a brick wall had been constructed on the river bank by Mr. Hawkins. The tideway of the Liffey was not enclosed by the massive barriers of the present day, and the strand on the South side of the river might be said to reach from about Moss street to Ringsend. Between Ringsend and the "Bagnio Slip," at the South end of the Metal Bridge, a ferry constantly plied, so that in going from, or in returning to, the city the necessity of skirting the strand or slob of the river could be avoided.

PATRICK'S WELL.

From College Green, along the south side of Trinity College, modern Nassau street was represented by Patrickswell lane, built on the filled in "College ditch." The actual well to which, for many years, pilgrims had made their way on the 17th of March is still in existence within the precincts of the College, not far from the end of Dawson street. The lane led to Patrickswell road and Merrion street (Merrion square did not then exist), and onwards to Beggars' Bush—a favourite resort for tramps and tinkers.

Grafton street, at the time, had not long been in existence. It derived its name from the Duke of Grafton, one of the numerous descendants of Charles II., whose son afterwards became Lord Lieutenant. The name of the street first occurs in a deed of mortgage registered in 1708; and in the latter part of the 17th century the ground on which it stands was mostly under cultivation. It was now rapidly taking its present shape, having been let out in "lots," on which within a short space of time a number of valuable houses were erected, that became residences for many of the nobility, including, among others, the Earl of Dunsany. These residences were situated amidst almost rural surroundings.

Duke Lane led to Dawson street, also of recent date, and in much the same stage of development as Grafton street. A deed (1721) records that Joshua Dawson granted "a plot of ground opposite the street of St. Anne for the building of a church for he new Parish of St. Anne," in lieu of a plot he had already granted, but which had been found to be unsuitable for that purpose. Owing to his graciousness, and to the fact that he was also under heavy expense in connection with the building of the church, Joshua was to have the right of being the first to select a vault underneath, and a seat in the church, to be held by him and his heirs (contingent on their remaining parishioners), for ever.

St. Stephen's Green—a morass in winter and a pasture ground in summer—had been enclosed for some time, and dwellings already existed on each of its four sides. The land was now being let out in the usual "lots," preparatory to extensive building thereon. A gallows stood on the Green, and was used as late as 1766 for the purpose of executions, the last being that of four pirates; but this fact did not prevent St. Stephen's Green from becoming a stylish residential quarter. From here the road led to Baggotrath and Donnybrook through fields and hedges, where the amenities of the landscape were diversified by windmills and limekilns overlooked by the ruins of Baggotrath Castle.

Westward from College Green, Dame street was then, as now, the main thoroughfare to the Castle. Close by, near "Trinity Mount," was the old church of St. Andrew, whose attendants included military of the garrison and well-to-do people of the neighbourhood. That the ownership of a seat in this church was looked on as being of some value is apparent from the numerous transactions registered in the Registry of Deeds (then within the Castle walls) relating to pews in the church. For instance, the right to "pue 63" is sold by Mr. R. Hutson, turner, for £9 15s. 5d., subject to his claim to the use of the pew for the following twelve months. "Pue 3," then in the ownership of Mr. Lloyd and family, is mortgaged for £7, and "pue 35," owing to its advantageous position in the "middle isle," fetches £12 10s. when sold by Mary Weaver to Barnaby Middleton, grocer.

A BISHOP IN AUNGIER STREET.

From Dame street, George's lane, very ill kept, and sometimes called George street, led to Aungier street, then inhabited by people of some standing, such as the Bishop of Tuam, who lived there in 1715. Passing St. Peter's Church and "the row of thacht cabbins and gardens in Kevin's Port," to the road led to a wild and sparsely populated part of the outskirts. Mr. Le Fanu, the novelist, narrates that a particular inn in this neighbourhood was the haunt of footpads and highwaymen, who levied their toll on pedestrians, horsemen, and vehicles travelling between the city and the family mansions scattered throughout Rathmines, Rathgar, and Rathfarnham. As the lineal descendant of that hostelry still stands on the same spot, the following extract will be of some interest:—

> "At the time (circa 1710) in which the events we have undertaken to record took place, there stood at the southern extremity of the city, near the point at which Camden street now terminates, a small old-fashioned building, something between an ale house and an inn . . . . over which hung a painted panel, representing a white horse, out of whose neck there spouted a crimson cascade, and underneath in large letters the traveller was informed that this was the genuine old 'Bleeding Horse.'"
> (The Cock and Anchor, Le Fanu).

The present South Circular road was represented by little more than a cartway to "Dolphin's Barn Town," where a branch of the then clear and pellucid "Poddle" entered the outskirts of the city by "The Pipes," supplied the inhabitants of the "Earl of Meath's Liberty" with, at least, one of the necessities of life, and filled the reservoir at James's street, known as the "City Bason." This "liberty" consisted of the thickly-populated district in and around the Coombe and Cork street, where stood the Earl's town residence. Ash street, which has only recently disappeared, was then a highly respectable street in this liberty, the corner house at its junction, with the Coombe, being described as "that large dwellinghouse known by the sign of 'The Goodwoman.'" The main stream of the Poddle supplied water to the numerous inhabitants of Thomas Court and The Archbishop's Liberty, helped to work the mill of the Manor of Thomas Court, and, as a rivulet which frequently flooded Patrick street, flowed by the grounds of Dublin Castle, and entered the Liffey near the old Custom House (1708), where it disembogued its accumulated riches to the satisfaction of the eager and expectant gulls of that generation.

From Dublin Castle Gate the road led past Cork House, the "Globe" Tavern, and Bysses court, all on Cork Hill (then undergoing the process of being widened), through Castle street, past St. Werburgh's Church to Christ Church, Skynners row, High street, and Cornmarket. Christ Church Yard, now occupied by the outoffices of the Cathedral, then housed some of the offices of the Irish Treasury, others finding quarters in Crane lane. At the junction of Skynners row with St. Nicholas street stood "The Tholsel," a building which corresponded more or less to the modern City Hall, and was as frequently the scene of tumult and disorder. At the western end of High street, on the south side, stood the "Black Dog Castle," formerly a prison of the worst type, in which men, women and children were herded together, regardless of health or morality; at the time under review it was being used as a marshalsea prison. A portion of the building yet stands, and, enclosed by an iron railing, is to be seen in Cornmarket.

ST. AUDOEN'S CHURCH.

On the north side of High street the present church of St. Audoen was a noticeable feature, and although this district was plentifully supplied with churches, most of which have disappeared, its high tower and proximity to the "walls" obtained for the church a certain importance. However, in 1712 the Rector, Rev. John Finglass, was under the necessity of putting in mortgage "all ministers' money dues, fees, perquisites, or income incident to or arising out of the Parish of St. Audoen." Immediately to the rear of the church the well-preserved St. Audoen's Arch still remains—a historic landmark in the city, being the only point at which the position of one of the eight original gates of the city can be fixed with exactitude.

Thomas street, immediately outside the "walls," was reached via Newgate, and just at the point where it meets Francis street "The Corn Market House" was in course of construction in the centre of the roadway. Inns and small brew-houses abounded on each side of the street, whilst St. Catherine's Church occupied its present position at the entrance to Thomas Court. In connection with the Vicarship of St. Catherine's the following extract may be given:—"The Earl of Meath, in consideration of good and faithful service done and to be done by the Rev. John Ellis, of St. James's Vicarage, and in consideration of £500, grants to him the next right of presentation" to St. Catherine's "when it becomes vacant" (1721). St. Catherine's was then the most prosperous parish in that part of the city.

At St. James's Gate stood a tower which had been formerly used, when necessary, to bar free ingress and regress as regards the city, the present large commercial establishment there being then only in the womb of time. Passing St. James's Church, the way led to the hamlet of Kilmainham, just surmounted by the Royal Hospital, which overlooked the "gallows at Kilmainham," the new Poor House, and the actual building of Steevens's Hospital (1720), in a quiet rural district. The money for this latter institution had been bequeathed by Dr. and Miss Steevens, a worthy example, followed since by many people, with the result that the present noble array of hospitals makes Dublin City unique amongst its fellows. The mail coach road to the south wound along the southern side of the two hospitals, across the Camac at Bow Bridge, and here it behoved the traveller, as in the case of the road to Rathmines, to be prepared for eventualities.

DUBLIN'S OLD INDUSTRIES.

A Backward Glance.

(BY RICHARD O'BRIEN.)

THE regrettable closing down of the Greenmount Mills, where the spinning and weaving industry has been carried on for five generations, should render interesting a glance backwards at the history of the linen and cotton trades in Dublin. It is now over two hundred years—to be precise, in the year 1718—since two brothers named Therston presented a petition to the trustees of the Irish Linen Board, which had then been established. In this they humbly prayed for some encouragement for the carrying on of linen and cotton manufacture in Dublin, but if anything ever came of this petition, the result is lost in the mists of antiquity.

Notwithstanding this fact, however, we find that nearly fifty years after—in 1760—there were two cotton manufacturers in Dublin. As might be expected, their machinery was rude and imperfect, and spinning was performed on a common worsted wheel, which span only one thread at a time. Cotton yarn of an inferior quality was obtained by them from Manchester, and later, in 1779, the manufacture of corduroys was first introduced in Dublin.

Up to this time the Irish cotton trade had been beset by difficulties, for by an Act of the British Parliament of the seventeenth century the direct importation into Ireland could only be made via Great Britain—the cost of the raw material being thus considerably increased. Indeed, by an English Act of Parliament (VII., George I.), heavy penalties were imposed for the wearing in England of garments which were not of English manufacture. In this way the English markets were cut off from Irish manufactures, and even before this time exportation to the Colonies from this country had been prohibited.

Compelled by force of circumstances, the British Parliament, in 1780, removed the various restrictions which had hitherto crippled Irish trade, and Ireland at once began to deal directly with the Colonies. About this time Mr. Robert Brooke, returning to his native country from the East, where he had amassed a huge fortune, seized on this recently declared freedom of commerce, and invested a very large sum of money in the Dublin linen and cotton industry. Before long, through his plucky efforts and speculation, the trades were soon in a flourishing condition. The most improved machinery was introduced into a large factory which had been established in the Liberties. A dry house and a finishing house were erected in Cork street, and skilled English operatives were brought over to give instruction to the people in the best method of manufacture.

Mr. Brooke appears to have been a man of very broad views, and quite modern in his ideas of what constituted ideal working conditions. He came to the conclusion that the district known as the Liberties was confined and unhealthy, and, to meet this objection, decided to build a town in the Co. Kildare. At this place, which he named Prosperous, roomy factories were erected to carry on the different stages of manufacture, including the printing of cotton and linen goods.

By degrees the industries grew, and soon there were factories in Cork street, Francis street, Roper's Rest, Harold's Cross, and at Malahide and Balbriggan. The Irish Parliament now came to the rescue of these worthy pioneers, and a grant of £25,000 was made to Mr. Brooke, and further grants of £10,000 to others engaged in the industry. But, notwithstanding this substantial help, Mr. Brooke, unfortunately, owing to lack of experience, failed. This was in 1786, and, in consequence, nearly 2,000 looms were thrown idle.

Meanwhile, other manufacturers were progressing in the Liberties, but the work here was, of necessity, of a fluctuating character, and at times a considerable amount of unemployment took place. As a result riots, too, became of frequent occurrence, and after a while the locality fell into some disrepute. To remedy this condition of affairs, it was proposed to establish factories in different parts of the country, and, with this object in view, Parliament made a grant of £96,000. As a consequence of this decision, many of the best operatives were lost to the city. At the time it was computed that there were 1,500 weavers in the Liberties.

The Napoleonic wars, which stopped the export trade to the Continent, together with an embargo which had been laid on the American ports, caused a rapid decline in the industries in the beginning of the new century, and in 1815 only 250 looms were engaged in Dublin. Sad to relate, step by step the manufacturers lost ground, and in 1830 there was only one factory in Dublin which employed any considerable number of hands. This firm carried on its work under great disadvantages, when compared with its cross-Channel rivals. The yearly consumption of coal amounted to 3,000 tons, which cost £2,500 more than the same amount would have cost in any of the English towns. Not only had the coal to be imported from the English coalfields, but, in addition, a heavy tax had to be paid on its entry into the port of Dublin.

In 1835 the industries had almost left Dublin, and had drifted gradually to Belfast. Here immense capital was sunk in them, and this fact, together with the Northern capital's proximity to the immense weaving districts of Scotland and the North of England, placed them on a firm footing in Ulster. By 1841 the linen and cotton industries in Dublin were extinct. Free Trade between Great Britain and Ireland, the localisation of the industries in Lancashire—where gigantic capital was employed in its increased production—and the high price of fuel in Dublin, helped to relegate the industries to the realms of an almost forgotten past.

A NOTEWORTHY CASTLE.

Its Observatory.

It may be interesting to recall that Markree Castle, the residence of Captain Bryan Cooper, late M.P. in the Imperial Parliament for a Dublin constituency, is within easy reach of the little town of Collooney, where one of the most obstinate battles was fought between the irregular and national forces. In the Cromwellian settlement the lands of Markree were given in satisfaction for arrears of pay to Edward Cooper, a Cornet in Sir Charles Coote's regiment of Dragoons, and have thus been in the occupation of the Cooper family ever since.

It was reported in the Press some little time ago that the castle was taken over by the irregulars, who, before evacuation, burned it, fell back upon the picturesque town of Collooney, and there strengthened their position.

The castle was built in the 17th century, and was small in comparison to the noble pile that, if report be true, was burned. The building was considerably enlarged by one of the immediate ancestors of the present owner, and was encompassed with battlemented walls that looked like the outworks of a fortified place, and thus gave the castle the appearance of a fortress quite as much as a private mansion.

It may not be known to many at the present day that an observatory was erected at Markree Castle in 1834, and was at the time furnished with one of the most powerful achromatic telescopes in the world. The instrument had a focal length of twenty-five feet seven inches, an object glass of over thirteen inches aperture, the largest existing at the time, and weighed over forty-seven hundredweight.

A writer in the Penny Journal of the early thirties refers to the instrument thus:—"Indeed, it is a matter calculated to afford gratification to Irishmen that a private gentleman—E. I. Cooper, Esq., M.P. for Sligo—residing in a remote district of the country, should have, in a complete and well-appointed observatory, the most efficient telescope in the world."

The big telescope soon became one of the wonders of Ireland, and attracted crowds of the scientific and the curious from all quarters. The British Association inspected the instrument in 1835; and savants from Paris, Vienna, and London were loud in admiration of its power and excellence. Dr. Doberck, of the Russian Observatory, Pulcowa, was in charge, as astronomer, of the Observatory some years ago, and was the author of several papers on "Double Stars," printed in the Transactions of the Royal Irish Academy, for which he was elected member of that learned institution. He also published six papers on Comets in the same scientific journal.

Mr. Edward I. Cooper was himself an astronomer of European reputation. He was known in many of the scientific establishments of Europe and America for his discovery of the planet Metis; and his work: "Catalogue of Ecliptic Stars," published through the aid of the grant at the disposal of the Royal Society, of which he was a member, still further enhanced his reputation as a man of science.

It must be said that the most kindly relations always existed, even in the heat and strife of the "land war," between the Cooper family and their tenants.

JOHN P. GUNNING.

THE PHILOSOPHER.

It was a fine Sunday morning, and I had just come on my friend, Tom, leaning over Templeogue bridge, watching the fishes at play.

"Musha (said I), what has ye out this side o' the country? I suppose ——"

"Well," he replied, "ye needn't suppose, becos I niver take a dhrink in the mornin', for if I tuk wan I'd take six. Arrah, it's no good, an' still we can't do 'idout id an odd time.

"Now, las' night—I hadn't a dhrink the whole week—I com' out on the bike. 'Twas a gran' evenin', an' between the hate o' the sun sinkin' over the goolden corn, an' the smell o' the new-cut hay, an the grass, an' the midges bitin', an' the dust o' the road, whin I was passin' that place—oh—ye know, that place the Black an' Tans burned over there beyant, ses I to meself, 'Tom, ye want a dhrink.' So in I wint, an' started off wud a pint like in th' oul' days—a fine pint. Man! the sparklin' fresh foam and the fragrant smell iv id out there in the counthry air—faith, it was thruly intoxicatin' in more sinses than wan. It wasn't long afore I had another, an' lit me pipe, and started for home.

"Bowlin' along be Crumlin I was feelin' grand—ye know that little house on the lift. So mainin' to have another whiff o' the fragrance an' thin go home an' read the paper, I got off an' wint in. Whin I got in who was there bud Mick McCann an' a couple more o' the bhoys—so be degrees the fragrance o' the porther got more an' more iv a mim'ry that I couldn't recall, bud I kep' takin' id for some other raison thin.

"Anyway, I did go home—I forgot about the paper—an' whin I wuk this mornin' I remimbered I had a few las' night—I'm not as young as I used to be.

"Now, I'm that sort I do like to be lukkin' into the mainin' o' things, an' lukking at thim little fishes below there dartin' about so brave, I was thinkin' how aisy they're caught afther all, an' how aisy oursilves is caught, too.

"If we cud on'y do wud the first fresh taste iv the porther an' the first fragrance, instid o' thryin' to keep id up—what we can't do. No, the plisure is in the first dhrink or two, id on'y comes wanst. I suppose we're niver aisy wud what we have, bud must be improvin' an' makin' id worse. Shure, id's like somethin' I read about poethry—a big 'ong pome won't be thrue poethry, the raal stuff is the few bits iv extasy, as they call id, here an' there; an' the same way wud a barrel o' porther, there's on'y a cupple o' glasses o' thrue satisfaction in the whole iv id.

"Talkin' o' the plisures o' porther an' plisures in gin'ral, reminds me o' what the pote Burns sed. He sed (in poethry, bud that doesn't matther) that plisures are on'y like poppies, an' if ye make too much iv a grab, ye'll pull the heads off o' thim, an' ye'll have naither plisures nor poppies. Well, I think ye cud illustherate the pint betther be sayin' that plisure is like a bottle iv O'Connell—becos ye must be careful an' tindher wud id or ye'll spile the whole thing; an' id's like O'Connell this way, too, that ye can't dhrink id to the dhregs—that is, morally spakin', for, iv coorse, ye can dhrink id to the dhregs, an' hould the bottle on yer head, if ye want to go to exthrames—bud if ye do, ye'll be makin' a mistake.

"An' thin luk at the price of id, an' the stuff ye get—id's not like th' oul' times, I tell ye, whin ye cud have fair divarshun for a bob or two, an' as fit as a fiddle afther.

"No more for me to-day, anyway. I'm goin' home now to me dinner, an' thin I'll take the wife out to Howth for a bit o' fresh air, for they have a hard time, too, an' don't say much about id."

JOHN ORR.

MUNICIPAL GOLF.

MR. JOHN LUMSDEN'S LEAD.

"Somebody must start the ball rolling and be ready, Sisyphus-like, to put an undefeatable shoulder to the stone of enterprise when, after the manner of many Irish enterprises, it starts rolling down hill."—(Irish Times, August 10th.)

When in last Saturday's notes I advocated the claims of the people of Dublin to a Municipal golf links in the Phœnix Park, I suggested that no good purpose would be served by merely thinking over the matter; that what was essential was for a few golfers to get together and set the ball rolling. I mentioned among others Mr. John Lumsden, the founder of the Royal Dublin Golf Club, the gentleman who laid the foundations of Dublin golf in the Phœnix Park in the early 'eighties and who is still, despite his 82 years, actively concerned in the affairs of the club which, with each succeeding year, has grown and grown until it is now in the very forefront of Irish golf clubs.

In a letter to the Irish Times, published on Thursday, Mr. John Lumsden emerged from his comparative retirement and took up the cudgels on behalf of the working men and women (or, as he puts it, "the people"). The father of Dublin golf tells us what has been accomplished by municipalities in England and Scotland in providing golf for the people, and, in advancing the claims of the working people of Dublin to cheap golf, assures us that the initial expense need be only trifling.

"Its success," he says, "would, I think, become great. At the start we would need the help and sympathy of the Lord Mayor and Corporation. The Government would grant the rights to play the game there, and the people should show that they wanted it."

Now that the ball has been set rolling, and that interest in the project has been revived, it is to be hoped that the subject will be taken in hand seriously and in a business-like manner by the holding of a meeting of those interested in the scheme.

As Mr. Lumsden points out, the help and sympathy of the Lord Mayor (who was a golfer in the days of the Riverside Club) are necessary, and could, I imagine, be readily enlisted on the side of Municipal golf, as also the assistance of the director of the Irish Olympic Games and others concerned in the development of the game.

Regarding the success of a Municipal golf course in the Phœnix Park there can be no doubt. Many hundreds are anxious to play the game, but are debarred from doing so by the excessive initial expense, for it is not every worker who can afford to put down 10 or 15 guineas, to say nothing of the cost of a few golf sticks and a heavy and ever-increasing annual club subscription.

As to the possibility of the Corporation's holding back on account of the initial expenditure, I think that that unlikely contingency could be met, for a time at all events, by the appointment of a Committee of well-known golfers, whose business it would be to secure the necessary money to start on the construction of the links, and if necessary "carry on" until such time—perhaps a year or two—as the Corporation thought fit to take them over and work them as a business proposition on behalf of the citizens.

There are many things to be considered, however. Let us now get to work.

SONAS FETE, BRAY.

The "Sonas Fête" was begun yesterday on Bray Esplanade, and will be continued to-day and to-morrow. The opening day proved a signal success, despite the somewhat inauspicious weather. This is as it should be, for all the proceeds are to be devoted to the relief of the poor in Bray.

The Committee have left little undone to provide attractions for holiday-makers and pleasure seekers. Mr. George Clune is Chairman of the Committee, and the hon. secretary, who is assisted by Mr. Bateman, is Mr. P. J. Dempsey, a young barrister, whose name is identified with most of the charitable work in the town. The fête Committee have taken over the chief attractions of the regatta Committee, and have added much that is new. Mrs. P. H. MacCarthy is running a tea stall, Mrs. Mackey is in charge of the ballroom, and a first-rate café chantant is under the management of Mr. Jack MacDermott, of Arcadia, and Mr. J. A. Mackey. The programme shows that some of the best Dublin and local artistes are performing hourly at these concerts. The flower stall is run by Miss Raverty: Miss Coates has the sweet stall, and the gipsy stall is managed by Mrs. Frame and Mrs. Mordaunt. Miss McCann has charge of the Irish stall, to which is attached a ceilidhe hall, from which the motor chars-à-bancs run around the beauty spots of the locality. During each day a piper's band, a brass band, and an orchestra play programmes of music. Several palmists and a Broadway soda saloon add to the pleasures of the fête. There are also an Alpine glide, hobby horses, joy wheel, and swing boats. To-day there will be a confetti fête throughout the grounds, and on the sea a water carnival of illuminated boats, for which prizes are offered for the best scheme of decoration. Mr. P. L. MacDonnell is in charge. On Sunday there will be a confetti battle in the ballroom, and several other attractions.

DUBLIN RIVERS.

A CURIOUS LIST.

Do many Dublin children know the names and number of the rivers that belong to the City of Dublin? Probably a goodly percentage of their elders would be puzzled if asked to make a list.

Like Rome, with its seven hills, our Metropolis can boast of seven rivers, all making their way from distant sources down towards the sea, or first adding their waters to the larger streams they meet on their course.

Shall we name them? Everyone, of course, is well acquainted with the Anna Liffey, which, in a charter of King John (dated 1192) is named "Auenelith." It has several sources and runs a circuitous course of some fifty miles from the vicinity of the Kippure Mountain, taking in additions at Sallygap and Lough Bray on its journey through parts of Kildare, and back to Dublin County and onward to Ringsend.

The Dodder comes also from the Kippure neighbourhood, and is as old a waterway as the Liffey. Its length is but about a dozen miles, but it makes its pleasant passage by some of Dublin's suburban districts, and its banks, down even to Ringsend, are well known and enjoyed by the citizens along its route.

Keeping still to the southern side of the Metropolis, the Poddle comes under notice. It is now hidden from view in the city, and after divisions and diversions ends its existence at Wellington quay, where it becomes part of the chief river, having first started from the Green Hills beyond Terenure, and made its way down, doing service to various mills and works as it passed.

How old these rivers are! Another, known in King John's day—the Tolka—coming away from the Co. Meath, on by Dunsink, and then to Finglas, we find it in the Botanic Gardens at Glasnevin, before it ends its run of some fifteen miles and tumbles into Dublin Bay.

The Camac, or Camoke, as those who used to ride the Franchises called it, makes a pleasant tour by way of Tallaght; past Blue Bell and other places, till, coming to Kilmainham, it joins the Liffey at the Kingsbridge.

Then the Bradoge, now known in the annals for three hundred years, comes away from Cabra, some two miles out from Dublin, and it also flowing beneath some of the busy streets on the north side, adds its portion to the mother river—the Anna Liffey, and so to sea.

And now, lastly, the little Swan River, with its short course from Mount Tallant, finds an exit near the mouth of the Dodder.

"So as brooks make rivers, rivers run to seas."

MOTOR RIDE FOR CATS.

A well-dressed, middle-aged woman, describing herself as sister of the Bishop of Nyassaland, who is accused of incurring debt by false pretences with a local firm of garage proprietors, from whom she hired a car to convey her luggage and five pedigree cats from Basingstoke to Chichester on August 8, made another appearance before the Chichester magistrates yesterday.

In the previous evidence it was stated that Miss Fisher wanted a separate room for each cat at her lodgings, and obtained four apartments.

A police officer said that he found a cat in each of her four bedrooms when he arrested her. They were beautiful animals, and, he understood, were Siamese.

The defending solicitor stated that they were worth £100 each.

In a statement to the police, accused said that previous to the war she lived on her property in France. Owing to the war she lost everything. She received £100 annually from her brother and help from relatives.

Accused was returned for trial, bail being reduced to the original amount.

IRISH STOCK EXCHANGES.

DUBLIN.

QUIET AND GENERALLY EASIER MARKETS. BANK STOCK WEAK. TOBACCOS CLOSE STRONG. OILS, AFTER INITIAL STRENGTH, CLOSE UNDER BEST.

The week-end market on 'Change was almost devoid of brisk dealing in public securities, but price movements tended to be adverse on balance. The Funds were weaker, with falls of ⅛ to ¼ all round, and a considerable set-back was established in Bank of Ireland Stock on the execution of a selling order in the absence of that support which was freely offered a week ago. Guinness Ord. were again dull, and further eased to 47. Marconis failed to quote until the later market, when 47s. 9d. was quoted. Home Rails were very dull. Great Northern Ord. and Great Southern Pref. alone quoted, and both fell fractionally. Tramways were neglected. Dunlop issues were dull and on offer often at lower prices. Tobaccos were very firm all day, especially Imperials, which closed just under 70s. Coats were a very good market, and the price tended slowly upwards. Mexican Eagle Oils rose sharply at one time, but closed well under best, and Shells were also on the up grade.

The Funds were easier on the international situation. War Loan 5 p.c. fell ⅛ to 100 1/16, do. 4 p.c. (tax free) ¼ to 101¾. Conversion 3½ p.c. ¼ to 76 1/16, and Consols ⅛ to 58¼.

Banks were mostly on offer, and lower. Bank Stock fell 4 to 225, Munster and Leinsters 1/16 to 6¼, and Nationals ¼ to 17, while Hibernians were exceptionaly firm, and rose 1/16 further to 6¼.

In Breweries and Distilleries, dealing was very limited. Guinness Ord. fell ⅛ to 47, and J. Power and Son Participating Pref. repeated 20s., both for small lots.

Home Railways were dull, and mostly neglected. Great Northern fell ¼ to 56¾, and Great Southern Pref. ¼ to 61¾. Others were passed over without any business being done.

Dunlop Rubber Ord. fell 3d. to 8s., and Parent Tyre Pref. 3d. to 13s. 3d.

Marconi Ord. fell 3d. to 47s. 9d.

In Drapery Shares, McBirneys remain on offer at 16s. 9d., compared with 17s., the previous level.

As regards Manufacturing Shares, British-American Tobacco rose 1s. 4½d. to 88s.-88s. 6d., and Imperials 1s. 6d. to 69s. 6d.-69s. 9d., after opening at 68s. 3d.-68s. 9d. Coats left off 6d. better at 65s. 7½d. to 65s. 9d., and the "B" Pref. rose 3d. to 24s. 3d. Goulding and Co. Pref. were wanted at 82s., the last price, and the Debs. repeated 75s. 6d. Calico Printers relapsed 4½d. to 22s. 3d. Bleachers were firm at 38s. 3d. Dublin Brick Shares again fetched 6s.

In Trading, etc., Burke Debs. repeated 7½ and Thomas Heiton Pref. 62s. 6d. Dockrell 6 p.c. Pref. were on sale at 16s., the previous quotation. Irish Civil Service fell ¼ to 19¼.

Other business done included Mexican Eagles, which rose 3s. 9d. to 62s. 9d., after opening at 63s., but at the later market the price fell to 61s. 6d. Shells rallied to 87s.

NITRATES AND MINES CHEERFUL.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT AND THE "FINANCIAL NEWS" OF TO-DAY.)

Apart from the featuring of a few stocks and shares, markets finished the week in quiet and uninteresting fashion. To a certain extent the monetary situation was still a factor, but the proximity of the fortnightly settlement proved to be a more weighty consideration, while, as usual, dealers were chary of entering into fresh commitments preparatory to closing their books for the week-end. Notable features in the House were the cheerfulness of Kaffirs and the firmness of a few Industrials such as Nitrate and Tobacco shares. Dulness prevailed again in the Gilt-edged market, where the only advance registered among Government Stocks was associated with Victory Bonds, and even in that isolated instance the improvement was of a minor character. Western Australia Sixes were an outstanding feature of strength in the Colonial group, which otherwise was scarcely more lively than on the previous day. Grand Trunk Pacific Debs. again displayed some activity, with markings ranging from 39 to 37½, although the closing quotation was unaltered at 37½.

LONDON STOCKS DRIFTING.

VERY LITTLE DOING.

The Stock markets showed a hesitating tendency, with business still on a very attenuated scale. Prices were inclined to drift in most sections, though there were some Mining shares and Industrial issues which were good. Gilt-edged Stocks marked time mostly, and changes were few and of small importance. Conversions were dull again and lost ¼ to 76, while Funding Loan and 5 p.c. War Loan lost ⅛ and ⅛ respectively.

The FOREIGN MARKET, with nothing to help it, found itself neglected. Previous prices ruled in almost all directions. French securities maintained their former prices. Mexican 10-Year Treasuries were ½ easier at 62.

HOME RAILS slipped back a little in the absence of fresh support, but movements were comparatively few. Great Westerns fell a point. North-Westerns, Great Northern Def., Brighton "A," and South-Eastern Def. all lost ½, and Caledonian Def.-Ord. eased ⅛. Metropolitans at 52½ x.d. were a point lower.

In FOREIGN RAILS, Leopoldinas continued their progress, and added ½ to their recent rise, closing at 34. Entre Rios 6 p.c. Pref. recovered ½ to 65, but other movements in the Foreign Railway market were adverse. Argentine Great Western Ord. fell a point. Buenos Ayres Great Southern and United of Havana lost ½, and Central Argentine receded ½. Canadian Pacifics repeated 159, but Trunk 4 p.c. Perp. Debs. were 1½ lower at 71½.

OIL SHARES DECLINE.

SELLING AGAINST OPTIONS.

Following the improvement which was witnessed in the late dealings on Thursday, the Oil share market had a distinctly cheerful appearance at the opening yesterday, business in leading descriptions such as Mexican Eagles and Shells being on a good scale, and prices further appreciating. In fact, during the early hours there was every indication of a continuance of the upward movement. The market derived satisfaction from the favourable advices received from New York and the fact that both Paris and Amsterdam were firm on the preceding day so far as Oil shares were concerned. Later in the day, however, an easier tendency developed, which was particularly marked in Mexican Eagles, which after their initial strength gradually fell away until at the end they had lost the whole of the preceding day's improvement. The fall had its origin in selling against options. In sympathy with Eagles other leading shares gave way, and while Royal Dutch picked up in the afternoon on the receipt of firm prices from New York and finished steady and unchanged, Shells finally registered a decline. In the Trinidad group, Centrals continued in request on favourable anticipations regarding the forthcoming report, quite a good business being transacted in the shares, which further advanced, while Leaseholds were also a better market. Among Roumanian issues, Phœnix made a firm start, but gave way later in the day on selling against options, while Steaua Romana (British) also left off easier. The rest of the list presented nothing of special interest. Closing prices:—

RUBBER SHARES FALLING.

There was nothing to relieve the dulness of the Rubber Share Market. United Sumatra, Straits Rubber, and Kinta Kellas were a copper or so better, but other movements were against holders. Anglo-Dutch repeated 26s. 6½d. Rubber Trusts were 3d. easier at 14s. 3d., and other shares lost varying amounts from a penny to 1s. 10½d., the latter loss being in Pegoh, which finished at 20s. 7½d. Rubber remained at 6½d. per lb. Closing prices:—

RATHMINES COUNCIL.

CO-OPTION OF A MEMBER.

Yesterday a special meeting of the Rathmines and Rathgar Urban Council was held for the purpose of co-opting a member in room of Mrs. Mulcahy, who had resigned. The chair was occupied by Mr. William Ireland.

Before the special business was proceeded with, the Chairman proposed the following resolution:—"That the members of Rathmines and Rathgar Council desire to convey to Mrs. Arthur Griffith and her family and relatives their sincere sympathy in their great sorrow and bereavement."

Alderman McDonagh seconded the motion, which was passed unanimously.

A letter was received from Mrs. Mulcahy expressing her thanks to the Council for asking her to reconsider her resignation and her regret that she could not accede to it.

On the motion of Mr. Thomas O'Connor, Mr. Michael W. O'Reilly, of 143 Leinster road, was co-opted by five votes to one, the latter being cast for Mr. Phillip Sayers.

The Berlin Communist journal Rote Fahne has been suppressed for a period of three weeks. Among other articles, it published a violent tirade against Bavaria and calumniated several members of the Reichstag.

LONDON MINING MARKET GOOD.

PRICES MOVING TO HIGHER LEVELS.

With the political situation looking somewhat brighter—the mark relapsed to well over 5,000—markets generally exhibited a firm tendency yesterday. As regards the South African departments, these opened in quite promising fashion, but after the early orders had been disposed of operations were more of a professional evening-up of books in view of the week-end, and comparative quietude prevailed. There was, however, no pronounced set-back, and dealers were more or less engaged with the preliminaries of the account, which commences on Monday next. The end-August option position had already been practically discounted, and so exerted but little influence on the course of the day's dealings. In spite of a further decline in the price of gold to 92s. per oz., the undertone was again encouraging, and Paris once more came in a keen buyer of Central Mining, Crown Mines, and Rand Mines. Advices from the Cape showed that quarter as a supporter of Robinson Deep "A" among its usual favourites. Randfontein issues were in good request and closed appreciably higher, and the whole list, with minor exceptions, moved towards higher levels. Rhodesians remained on the dull side, this department being more influenced by the settlement of the pre-war account. Chartered gave way in view of the prolongation of the referendum on Rhodesia joining the Union. Globe and Phœnix were a weak spot, but Bechuanaland Exploration and Rhodesia Gold Mining Investment met with a few inquiries, and advanced. De Beers were the only feature in the Diamond section on Paris arbitrage buying. Tin advanced a further 2s. 6d. to £161 13s. 9d. per ton, but the share market remained in a dismal mood, the only two changes being of a nominal character. Among Coppers, Rio Tinto were well maintained at the previous day's level, and Mount Lyell showed a fractional advance. Russo-Asiatic were a steady market. In other directions, Mexico Mines showed up prominently on persistent French demands, and a couple of Indian descriptions moved in opposite directions. Closing prices:—

INDUSTRIALS HARDER.

IMPROVING BUSINESS.

Rather more interest was taken in the Miscellaneous and Industrial markets yesterday, operators reporting that the amount of business put through was more satisfactory, and a hardening tendency was in evidence. Some buying for "next time" was said to have taken place. Following the announcement of the interim dividend B.A.T.'s were in request, and closed 1s. 3d. higher at 88s.; while Imperials also met with support, and rose 1s. 1½d. to 69s. 1½d. Albert Bakers recovered to 26s. in the Miscellaneous Trading group; De La Rue Debs. changed hands at down to 96, the quotation being called 95-100. Lever 7 and 8 p.c. Prefs. both lost the turn at 19s. 9d. and 19s. 3d., respectively, and Oil Cakes fell 6d. to 27s. 3d. Wall Paper Defd. recovered to 7s. 9d., and Waring and Gillow Prefs. improved to 9s. 3d. Dunlops continued at 8s. 3d. Magadi Sodas further eased to 7s. 3d., and Brunner Monds slipped back to 30s. Wm. Griffiths were a firm market at 13s. Among Motors, S.T.D. weakened to 9s. 3d., and Prefd. to 11s., on rumours of a fresh capital issue. In the Newspaper and Printing department, Associateds put on 9d. to 20s. 9d. Breweries were featureless, prices remaining steady at previous levels. Caterers had a firmer appearance. J Lyons recovered to 4⅛, while A.B.C.'s and Liptons held their ground at 33s. and 25s. 6d., respectively. Maypole Defd. hardened to 6s. 1½d. among Foodstuffs, and Van Den Bergh "B" Pref. to 16s. 9d. After their recent dulness, which was attributed to option transactions, Courtaulds were inclined to go better at one time, and finished firm at 50s. 3d. at the close. Elsewhere in the Textile section Calicos rallied to 22s., and Fine Spinners to 40s. 3d. Bleachers, however, eased to 38s. 6d.

In the Stores list Whiteleys gave way to 39s., though J. Barkers put on 9d. to 47s. In the Insurance list Alliance New fell ¼ to 12½, but Commercial Unions gained that much at 30. Forestals continued to dwindle among Land Shares, and closed another 6d. lower at 16s. 9d.; while British North Borneos receded to 10s. Pahangs hardened to 5s. 3d. Brasilian Tractions rose 1s. 2d. to 50s. among Canadian-Americans. Fresh strength was displayed by Nitrates, and a further list of advances has to be recorded. Shipping issues kept steady. Armstrongs further improved to 16s. among Iron and Steels, and Guest Keen rose 6d. to 36s. B.S.A.'s lost 6d. at 8s. 9d., and Vickers (tax free) Pref. further receded to 16s. 9d. ex div.; Ebbw Vale Prefs. held their ground at 16s. 3d., and the Ord. kept at 12s. Sheffield Steels kept firm at 2s. 7½d., the Prefs. at 8s. 9d., and the Debs. were dealt in at 76⅞. Powell Duffryns strengthened to 33s. 6d. among Coal stocks, but D. Davis and North's Navigation both lost 3d. at 6s. 9d. and 6s. respectively. Nobel's Industries further improved to 16s. 3d., or 9d. higher on balance, but the Prefs. still ruled at 18s. 6d. Imperial Continentals were marked down another 5 points to 142½ among Gas stocks. In the Wireless group, Marconis eased to 2⅜, though the Prefs. held their ground at 2 1/16, and Marines kept at 1 11/16; Canadians receded to 10s. 6d. Cables were maintained. Anglo "B" rose ½ to 104½, and gains of 1/16 were registered by Eastern Extensions at 18 11/16, and by Westerns at 18 11/16. Among recent new issues, Tata Debs. were a weak spot, being offered down to 96½. Empire Paper Mills Debs. firm at 7 premium, and Charles Baker Debs. rallied to 8 premium; A B C Prefs. hardened to 9d. premium, and Platt Bros. Prefs. were in demand, changing hands at up to 23s. 10½d.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

S.T.D. Motor issues have developed weakness on talk of fresh funds having to be raised. The company's own position as last disclosed does not support this report, says the Evening Standard, for it had then cash amounting to £231,000 and investments other than in subsidiaries of £68,000, against creditors of £78,000. But the subsidiaries are probably having as difficult a time as hitherto, and in this connection it is recalled that the company had contingent liabilities of £493,000 in reference to acceptances and amounts due to bankers by subsidiaries which it has guaranteed. Hence a possibility exists of some financing having to be done.

Plantation rubber has changed hands well under 7d. per lb., and this constitutes a new low record. In June last the price rose to 9½d. per lb., that being the highest figure of the present year. Such a level was touched when the report came to hand that at the Dutch conference there was a large majority in favour of Government restriction of output. The latest depression of rubber has to do in a measure with the collapse of the mark, says the Pall Mall Gazette, for with things as they are the buying of the commodity by Germany becomes more difficult than ever. An additional reason for the prevailing heaviness is the delay in the definite decision of the Dutch Government regarding restriction. Pending that intimation conditions are not likely to improve. Another adverse factor just now is the news that certain large producing companies in the Netherlands Indies are selling the whole of their output several years ahead direct to America. That renders the general rubber outlook still more unsatisfactory, and the outlook as a whole is by no means promising.

An advertisement appears elsewhere calling an extraordinary general meeting of the members of the Irish National Assurance Company on Tuesday, September 12, for the purpose of altering the Articles of Association to enable the company to carry on employers' liability assurance.

The directors of Lloyds Bank, Ltd., announce that Mr. J. W. Beaumont Pease, formerly Deputy Chairman, has been elected Chairman of the bank, in place of the late Sir Richard Vassar Smith.

Through recent heavy rains many corn crops in Bedfordshire are lying flat, and estimated losses to the farmer range up to £4 an acre.

THE MONEY MARKET.

DEARER TREASURY BILLS.

GERMAN MARKS WEAKER.

No Treasury Bonds were accepted at yesterday's tenders because, so it was presumed, the terms on which they were offered were too stiff. The Treasury bills were placed on a considerably dearer basis on the point of view of the Government, the average being almost 2 1/16 p.c., and it is doubted whether the bulk has been allotted. Bills dated Monday to Friday offered at £99 7s. received about 92 p.c., and Saturday bills at £99 7s. 2d. and above were allotted in full. Discounts were adjusted accordingly, with most houses quoting 2⅝ p.c. for fine three months' bills, but, as they were scarce, business was done below that. The new Treasuries were offered second-hand at 2 1/16 p.c., and earlier in the day business was done at 2 1/16-2⅛ p.c. A small business in discounts was done at the Bank, evidently in preparation for next week and the end of the month, for loanable credit was not nearly so stringent. After being 2¼ p.c., night money came on offer down to 2 p.c. Fixtures were going on at 1½ p.c.

Gold was 1d. lower at 92s. Bar silver declined ⅛d. per oz. for both spot and forward delivery to the common price of 34⅛d.

After opening weak German marks rallied, but fell back again to 5,050-5,150, while French francs, after being 56.20, came back to 55.90-55.95, and similarly Belgium moved to 58.90-58.95. Sterling was still strong on New York at 4.48⅛-4.48⅝, and Montreal rose to 4.49-4.49¼. Austrian crowns showed no recovery. The following are closing quotations:—

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS.

CENTRAL HOTEL COMPANY.—The report of the directors, to be submitted at the meeting at the Central Hotel on Saturday, 26th August, at noon, states that, after paying or providing for rent, rates, taxes, repairs, renewals, bank interest, bad debts, wages, salaries, etc., the balance to credit of revenue account amounted to £3,960 2/5, to which has to be added interest on investments and cash on deposit, etc., £28 8/9, and balance brought forward from last account £2,029 7/10, making a total of £6,017 19/-. Interest on Debentures (£438), corporation profits tax to 30th June, 1921 (£11 18/-), and interim dividend to 31st December, 1921 (£560) absorbed £1,009 18/-, leaving a balance of £5,008 1/-, out of which the directors recommend payment of a final dividend on Ordinary Shares for the year at the rate of 10 per cent. (less income tax) for the six months ended 30th June, 1922, £580; place to reserve for redemption of Debentures, £1,000; place to reserve for general improvements, £2,000, leaving to be carried forward to next account subject to coporation profits tax) £1,428 1/-. Having regard to the continued unsettled condition of things in Ireland during the past twelve months, the directors consider the results of the year's trading as being highly satisfactory. It will be noted that nothing has been written off for depreciation, for the obvious reason that the furniture and fixtures have been valued at a higher price than the amount standing in the books, and for the further reason that in no past period has so much money been spent in repairs and renewals than the twelve months under review. The result is that the Central Hotel has been kept up to date in every department and maintained throughout the year in a state of high efficiency. The directors again express the hope that when peace is fully restored to Ireland that the Central Hotel will continue to enjoy an ever-increasing patronage from the travelling public. One of the directors, Mr. J. W. Jennings, retires by rotation, and, being eligible, offers himself for re-election.

PORTSEA ISLAND GAS LIGHT.—Dividends of 6½ per cent. on A and B Shares, 6 per cent. on C Shares, 5 per cent. on D and E Shares, and 2½ per cent. on 5 per cent. Maximum Stock.

TATA IRON AND STEEL.—Cable advice from India states that directors' report shows a net profit of Rs48 lakhs, but it is not proposed to pay a dividend on the Ordinary for the year to March 31 last.

W. J. BUSH AND COMPANY.—Accounts for 1921 show gross profit of £149,246. After providing for Debenture interest, expenses and directors' remuneration, and making allowances for depreciation, there is loss of £87,456. Deducting from this amount brought forward leaves an adverse balance of £23,835. In view of the substantial reserve it was not considered necessary to defer payment of dividends on Preference shares. This brings adverse balance up to £30,085, which is being carried forward pending the settlement of tax claims. This result is mainly due to disastrous fall in the prices of all commodities handled by company.

CATTLE.

BIRKENHEAD, Friday.—Supplies—2,500 cattle and 4,438 lambs. Larger supply of cattle on offer to-day. Trade slow, with a downward tendency in prices. A few choice bullocks and heifers made around 11d. General quotation for good bullocks and heifers was from 10½d. to 10¾d.; secondary cattle made 9d. to 10d. A clearance was not effected. There was also a large supply of lambs. Trade was slow, without quotable alteration in values, prices being from 1/3 to 1/4 per lb. sinking offal.

GRAIN.

DUBLIN CORN EXCHANGE, Friday.—The attendance here continues very moderate, and business poor. Although there has been a large reaping of oats in County Dublin recently, threshing is kept back by the unfavourable state of the weather, and samples are coming slowly to hand. Transactions in black oats up to the present have been small, and prices are from 19/- to 19/3 and 19/6 per barrel; for extra nice qualities up to 20/- has been paid. It is questionable if with larger deliveries these prices are likely to be maintained. Regarding old oats, prices are still nominally from 20/- to 21/6 for fair to good blacks, and 20/- to 22/6, perhaps 23/-, for average run of whites. A hand sample of wheat was about to-day, but it was not stated what bulk was behind it, nor was any price mentioned.

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES.—BALTIC, Friday. WHEAT—Cargo market is dull, with sellers soliciting bids: Pacific September-October sellers 48/-, No. 2 hard winter September 45/6, Australian afloat 52/-, Rosafe 63½lbs. afloat 46/6, Barii 62lbs. loading 47/-. Parcels opened firmer, but assumed a quieter tone later: No. 1 Northern Manitoba August 50/9, sellers No. 2 hard winter August 44/3, August-September 43/9, Australian afloat 52/-, Rosafe 63½lbs. August 47/- per 480lbs. MAIZE—Cargoes quiet, but sellers were firmer in their ideas, on adverse weather in the Argentine; the City of Amiens, 4,178 French tons, Dan.-Galt.-Fox.-Bees afloat sold 37/6; Plate steamers afloat sellers 40/-, August 39/-, August-September 37/-, September-October 36/6. Parcels quiet; Plate July-August sold 36/10½, September-October sellers 33/9, No. 6 yellow African August-September sellers 32/6, No. 2 American mixed August 31/6 per 480lbs. BARLEY dull, and tendency weaker; a cargo Dan.-Bess.-Kus. August-September sellers at 32/6. Parcels of No. 4 Canadian Western October 27/9 per 400lbs. OATS quiet of sale; No. 2 Canadian Western August sellers 27/-, No. 2 American white clipped 38lbs. August 22/3; per 36lbs. ditto 21/6 per 320lbs.

MARK LANE, Friday.—ENGLISH WHEAT quiet; whites delivered up 54/- to 56/-, reds 54/- to 56/-. Foreign grades dull; No. 1 Northern Manitoba 54/6 ex ship, 56/6 landed, No. 3 ditto 49/6 ex ship, No. 2 hard winter 49/6 ex ship, Australian spot 57/6, ditto 55/6 ex ship; Rosafe 64lbs. 52/- ex ship, 53/- landed. FLOUR dull and weak; Canadian exports patents 42/6 to 43/6 ex store, Minneapolis 1st patents 43/6 to 44/- ex store, Pacific 37/6 to 38/6 ex store, London standard straight run 43/- at mill, Australian patents 39/6 ex store. GRINDING BARLEY quietly steady; English new 40/- to 45/- f.o.r., No. 4 Canadian Western 34/6 landed, Persian 29/9 ex store. OATS steadier; imported 3d. dearer; English 35/- to 39/- ex ship, No. 2 Canada Western 30/9 landed, Plate f.a.q. 26/6, clipped 27/6 landed, American white clipped 38lbs. 26/9, 36lbs. 26/- landed. MAIZE steadier; mixed American 34/- ex ship, 35/6 landed, Plate 40/6 ex ship, 42/6 to 43/6 landed.

LIVERPOOL, Friday.—Higher quotations from America caused speculative positions of WHEAT here to improve fairly during early trading, but with sterling exchange rates again better, and limited millers' inquiry, values afterwards receded, and fluctuated moderately, according to the offerings finishing at little over the worst point, with no material change from yesterday. C.i.f. parcels No. 2 hard winter afloat sold at 44/3, July-August 44/-, and No. 2 red winter July-August at 43/3 to 43/- to Liverpool, and No. 3 Manitoba July-August 45/6, and No. 2 red winter July-August at 43/3 to 43/- to Manchester. C.i.f. parcels MAIZE dearer; River Plate afloat sold at 38/6, loading 37/6, July-August 37/3, American mixed about due 31/9 to 32/-, September 31/3, October 31/- per qr. Wheat on the spot was irregular at generally 1d. to 3d. per cental under Tuesday's market currencies, with little inquiry. Maize—Spot parcels firm for American mixed, and holding for 3d. per cental over yesterday's prices at 7/2 to 7/3, but River Plate unchanged at 8/7 to 8/8 per cental. FLOUR quiet, but not quotably altered. Graded red wheat futures opened ¾d. to 1¼d. dearer, lost ½d., but again improved, and fluctuated moderately though the market eventually closed quiet, with September unchanged, and December ¾d. per cental lower on the day. Yellow River Plate and American mixed maize options nominal.

DERBY CORN, Friday.—No business was done in local corn, old stocks having been cleared out, and a spell of fine weather being required before trade is done in new samples.

WAKEFIELD, Friday.—Light supplies of grain, but very little business passing. English wheat made 55/- to 56/- per qr. A few samples of new black oats on show, but prices not fixed.

PROVISIONS.

BACON—Market steady with a good demand for Danish; American steady, quiet; Irish reduced 5/- per cwt.; Irish 145/- to 165/-, Danish 130/- to 152/-, Swedish 138/- to 146/-, Dutch 130/- to 140/-, Canadian 130/- to 140/-, American Cumberland cut 111/-, bellies box English cut 96/- to 99/-, American Wiltshire cut 116/- to 122/-, American Canadian cured 116/- to 120/-. HAMS—English in fair request, but American depressed. York and Cumberland 210/- to 230/-, Canadian long cut green 120/- to 130/-, American long cut green 115/- to 130/-, short cut green 104/- to 112/-; picnics 62/- to 76/-. LARD steady but quiet; Irish bladders 72/- to 80/-, boxes 28lbs. 63/- ex factory, American boxes 66/- to 68/6, cartons 71/- to 72/-, American pails 72/6, Danish bladders 70/- to 72/-. EGGS—The market firmer with a good demand; Dutch all brown 17/6 to 18/6, mixed 15/- to 16/-, English new laid 18/- to 20/-, Irish 16/-, Hungarian blues 12/6 to 13/-, reds 9/6, Lithuanian 11/- to 12/-, Danish 18lbs. 17/6 to 18/6, 16lbs. 16/- to 16/6, Polish 9/- to 10/-, Chinese 9/- to 10/-.

LIVERPOOL, Friday.—BACON—A further decline in values of live hogs was cabled from Chicago, but speculative products showed no material change, while imports into Liverpool marked a falling off. The market for bacon here remained steady to firm, with holders still offering sparingly in view of the continued moderate supplies on hand and fair demand, bellies being again chiefly in request, and prices raised 1/- to 97/- to 101/- per cwt., which represented the only quotable alteration. HAMS were again firm for short cut, and a fair inquiry was reported at the recent advance, but other descriptions slow of sale at late currencies. Shoulders quiet all round, and picnics are offered at 2/- less money for the lower grades, the quotation now being 70/- to 78/- per cwt. Canadian Wiltshires, Irish, and Continental sides in small supply and firmly held. LARD on the spot again offered sparingly, and a fair inquiry continued to be experienced at slightly higher prices of 65/6 to 66/- for prime steam, and fully late rates for American refined. CHEESE in fair request, and, with higher quotations from Canada, prices are 1/- to 2/- dearer, white being held at 89/- to 91/- and coloured 87/- to 89/- per cwt. BUTTER in good demand and dearer owing to the higher quotations from Denmark. Danish held at 220/- to 224/-, Irish creameries 200/- to 204/-, and Canadian 196/- to 200/- per cwt. EGGS firm at 16/- to 17/- per 120 for Irish hen.

PATRICK KEHOE, LTD., Irish Bacon Curers and Lard Refiners, Importers of American Provisions. (Estd. 100 years.)—103 FRANCIS ST., DUBLIN.—(Advt.)

REFINED LARD FUTURES.—LIVERPOOL, Friday.—Cable advices from Chicago turned out about as expected, and little material change took place here during the early session, the limited business done being at unchanged prices to 3d. per cwt. advance. September realised 66/9, October 66/6, January 59/-, and February 58/-, with sellers of August asking 66/9 per cwt. With easier afternoon cables values receded slightly, closing unchanged to 3d. lower on the day. October sold at 66/3, September quoted 66/- to 66/6, November 65/- sellers, January 58/6 bid.

MANCHESTER, Friday.—BUTTER—Quotations of Danish have been raised to the equivalent of 11/-, and next Tuesday's price will be 222/- to 224/- per cwt. Swedish is quoted 216/- to 220/-, and Finnish 215/- to 217/-, and Irish 196/- to 200/-. BACON—The market continues firm, with Canadian and American in small supply and nominal. Other descriptions are without quotable alteration. LARD continues steady. CHEESE continued steady, with prices showing an upward tendency. EGGS in small supply, with prices hardening. Irish at 17/- to 17/9, and Danish 16/9 to 18/6 per 120.

DUBLIN FRUIT AND VEGETABLE, Friday.—Market liberally stocked with imported fruits and seasonable home-grown varieties. Trade improved to fair, but prices rather wobbly and irregular. Imported black grapes, 1/9 to 2/6 per lb.; Muscats, 2/- to 2/6; Lisbon grapes, 24/- to 30/- per barrel; Victoria plums, 18/- to 22/- per half bushel; others, 8/- to 16/- and 18/- ditto; William pears, 7/- to 8/- per 48 case; Dutch and Belgian pears, 14/- to 18/- per crate, and 12/6 to 18/- and 20/- per barrel; melons, 12/- to 14/- per case; Cape oranges, 32/- to 35/-; lemons, 18/- to 30/- per case; Irish peaches slow and cheap, 2/- to 4/- and 6/- per dozen; special, 8/- to 13/-; gooseberries, 5/- to 7/6, 8/6, and special, 10/- to 11/6 per float, etc.; Irish plums, 4d. to 5d. and 6d. per lb.; red currants, 3d. to 7d. per lb.; Loganberries, 9d.; apples, 3/- to 4/9 and 5/- per tray; ordinary and windfalls, 1/6 to 2/6; large cookers, 5/- to 8/-. Vegetables in great abundance, and a busy market. Cabbage abnormally dear. Cauliflowers and swede turnips also very dear. Other commodities averaged moderate figures. Tomatoes, 5d. to 8½d. per lb.; Dutch, 4d. to 5d. ditto; cauliflowers, 5/- to 7/6 and 8/- per dozen; seconds, 2/3 to 4/-; vegetable marrows, 3/6 to 5/6 and 10/- and 4/6 extra, 16/- per dozen; cucumbers, 8/- to 12/- per dozen; York cabbage, 50/- to 80/- per load, extras, 100/-, 125/-, and 135/- ditto; rhubarb, 2/- to 3/- and 3/6 per dozen bunches; carrots, 9d., 1/3 to 1/6 ditto; parsnips, 1/- to 2/9 and 3/- ditto, and 7/6 per bag; swedes, 4/6 to 5/6 per cwt.; white turnips, 6d. to 9d. and 1/- per bundle; York cabbage, in bags, 4/- to 5/-, getting a popular sale; lettuce, 4d. to 6d. and 10d. per dozen; celery, 6d. to 8d. per bunch; onions, 6d. to 9d. ditto; sprouts, 3/- to 5/- per bag; broad beans, 9d. to 1/3; kidney beans, 2/6 to 3/6 and 4/-; scarlet runners, 2/- per box; peas, 2/6 to 3/6 per float, etc., 16/- to 24/- per bag; parsley, 6d. to 9d. per tray; 2/6 to 3/6 per bag; spinach, 1/- to 1/6 per tray; thyme, 3d. and 6d.; sage, 3d. to 4d.; mint, 2d. to 3d. per bunch.

DUBLIN POTATO, Friday.—Supplies of potatoes continue of comparatively moderate dimensions, and clear fairly satisfactorily on a quiet trade at previous quotations, viz., 5/- to 5/6 per cwt. for Epicures and 6/6 to 7/- for Queens, according to character and handling.

DUBLIN BUTTER AND EGG, Friday.—There continues to be a firmer tone permeating this market in both sections. With some further advance in Copenhagen advices this week, Irish creams are commanding more money across Channel, and this in turn has put some leverage on producers' prices at this side. Wholesalers are now very firm at 1/10 for choice creams, and in some special cases 1/10½ is spoken of. Secondary descriptions from 1/7½ to 1/9, with fair mediums at 1/9½ per lb. Farmers' butter is not so plentiful, and is likewise held for better prices. Best qualities of firkins and cools from 1/4 to 1/6; separators, say, 1/6 to 1/7, according to character. Ordinary descriptions of lumps and firkins, etc., are from 1/2 to 1/4, and low grade stuff, say, 1/- to 1/1 per lb. The heavy percentage of stale and overheld eggs coming in necessitates careful rehandling of consignments, and this tends to make prices rather dearer. For reliable fresh arrivals top prices are freely responded to, but even sorted qualities from ordinary consignments are cautiously dealt in, and do not in every case give satisfaction; in fact, the market is very much upset by the mixed and unsatisfactory quality of eggs coming to hand for some time past. For average case eggs prices run from 13/- to 17/6 per 120; extra selected lots, 18/- to 18/6 per 120. The latter price, however, only appertains to retail transactions. Small and ordinary eggs from 11/- to 12/6 per 120.

HALSTON STREET POULTRY AND GAME, Friday.—Young plump grouse in good request at 9/- and 10/- per brace. Poultry market generally is well supplied, and the trade off-take equal to a satisfactory clearance at about previous run of values. Turkey poults are coming in too light, and average 1/6 to 1/10 per lb., but 2/- is freely obtainable for prime birds of not less than 5lbs. Chickens, 1/- to 1/3, and crammed, 1/4 per lb., dead; pullets, 4/- to 5/- each; hens, fat, dead, 1/6 to 2/-; alive, 2/6 to 3/- each; prime fat ducklings, 3/6 to 4/6; seconds, 1/6 to 2/6½; old ducks, 9d. to 1/-; store goslings, 3/6 to 4/6, or may be reckoned 6d. per lb. A few lots of dead young geese sold disappointingly, being too early. Rabbits of fresh trapped quality in request at 10d. to 1/- each; young pigeons, 9d. to 1/-; wild duck, 2/6 and 3/- each for plump.

DUBLIN FISH, Friday.—Very little fish of any kind on market this morning. The four or five packages of salmon were mostly of stale and inferior class.
